NIGC revises Draft Consultation Policy to streamline process for tribes

WASHINGTON, Feb., 21, 2013 – Today, the National Indian Gaming Commission released a revised draft Consultation Policy in an effort to maximize the effectiveness and efficiency of the tribal consultation process. The NIGC has scheduled two consultation dates in March to accept comment on the new draft.

"We know that tribes consult with many Federal agencies," said NIGC Chairwoman Tracie Stevens. "We want to maximize the benefit of consultation with tribes while remaining mindful of tribal resources."

The new Draft Policy streamlines the consultation process and adopts appropriate guidelines from the Department of the Interior's Consultation Policy, while retaining those necessary to maintaining the unique relationship between the NIGC and tribes.

Chairwoman Stevens further added, "We want tribes to know what to expect and to hold us to those expectations when consulting with the NIGC."

The National Indian Gaming Commission is committed to the prompt and efficient regulation of the Indian gaming industry spanning more than 420 gaming establishments, associated with nearly 240 tribes across 28 states. The Commission's dedication to compliance with the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act ensures the integrity of the $27 billion Indian gaming industry.
