MEMORANDUM FOR ALL UNITED STATES ATTORNEYS

FROM:

James M. Cole

Deputy Attorney General

SUBJECT:

Guidance Regarding Marijuana Enforcement

In October 2009 and June 2011, the Department issued guidance to federal prosecutors concerning marijuana enforcement under the Controlled Substances Act (CSA). This memorandum updates that guidance in light of state ballot initiatives that legalize under state law the possession of small amounts of marijuana and provide for the regulation of marijuana production, processing, and sale. The guidance set forth herein applies to all federal enforcement activity, including civil enforcement and criminal investigations and prosecutions, concerning marijuana in all states.

As the Department noted in its previous guidance, Congress has determined that marijuana is a dangerous drug and that the illegal distribution and sale of marijuana is a serious crime that provides a significant source of revenue to large-scale criminal enterprises, gangs, and cartels. The Department of Justice is committed to enforcement of the CSA consistent with those determinations. The Department is also committed to using its limited investigative and prosecutorial resources to address the most significant threats in the most effective, consistent, and rational way. In furtherance of those objectives, as several states enacted laws relating to the use of marijuana for medical purposes, the Department in recent years has focused its efforts on certain enforcement priorities that are particularly important to the federal government:

- Preventing the distribution of marijuana to minors;
- Preventing revenue from the sale of marijuana from going to criminal enterprises, gangs, and cartels;
- Preventing the diversion of marijuana from states where it is legal under state law in some form to other states;
- Preventing state-authorized marijuana activity from being used as a cover or pretext for the trafficking of other illegal drugs or other illegal activity;

- Preventing violence and the use of firearms in the cultivation and distribution of marijuana;
- Preventing drugged driving and the exacerbation of other adverse public health consequences associated with marijuana use;
- Preventing the growing of marijuana on public lands and the attendant public safety and environmental dangers posed by marijuana production on public lands; and
- Preventing marijuana possession or use on federal property.

These priorities will continue to guide the Department's enforcement of the CSA against marijuana-related conduct. Thus, this memorandum serves as guidance to Department attorneys and law enforcement to focus their enforcement resources and efforts, including prosecution, on persons or organizations whose conduct interferes with any one or more of these priorities, regardless of state law.¹

Outside of these enforcement priorities, the federal government has traditionally relied on states and local law enforcement agencies to address marijuana activity through enforcement of their own narcotics laws. For example, the Department of Justice has not historically devoted resources to prosecuting individuals whose conduct is limited to possession of small amounts of marijuana for personal use on private property. Instead, the Department has left such lower-level or localized activity to state and local authorities and has stepped in to enforce the CSA only when the use, possession, cultivation, or distribution of marijuana has threatened to cause one of the harms identified above.

The enactment of state laws that endeavor to authorize marijuana production, distribution, and possession by establishing a regulatory scheme for these purposes affects this traditional joint federal-state approach to narcotics enforcement. The Department's guidance in this memorandum rests on its expectation that states and local governments that have enacted laws authorizing marijuana-related conduct will implement strong and effective regulatory and enforcement systems that will address the threat those state laws could pose to public safety, public health, and other law enforcement interests. A system adequate to that task must not only contain robust controls and procedures on paper; it must also be effective in practice. Jurisdictions that have implemented systems that provide for regulation of marijuana activity

¹ These enforcement priorities are listed in general terms; each encompasses a variety of conduct that may merit civil or criminal enforcement of the CSA. By way of example only, the Department's interest in preventing the distribution of marijuana to minors would call for enforcement not just when an individual or entity sells or transfers marijuana to a minor, but also when marijuana trafficking takes place near an area associated with minors; when marijuana or marijuana-infused products are marketed in a manner to appeal to minors; or when marijuana is being diverted, directly or indirectly, and purposefully or otherwise, to minors.

Memorandum for All United States Attorneys Subject: Guidance Regarding Marijuana Enforcement must provide the necessary resources and demonstrate the willingness to enforce their laws and regulations in a manner that ensures they do not undermine federal enforcement priorities.

In jurisdictions that have enacted laws legalizing marijuana in some form and that have also implemented strong and effective regulatory and enforcement systems to control the cultivation, distribution, sale, and possession of marijuana, conduct in compliance with those laws and regulations is less likely to threaten the federal priorities set forth above. Indeed, a robust system may affirmatively address those priorities by, for example, implementing effective measures to prevent diversion of marijuana outside of the regulated system and to other states, prohibiting access to marijuana by minors, and replacing an illicit marijuana trade that funds criminal enterprises with a tightly regulated market in which revenues are tracked and accounted for. In those circumstances, consistent with the traditional allocation of federal-state efforts in this area, enforcement of state law by state and local law enforcement and regulatory bodies should remain the primary means of addressing marijuana-related activity. If state enforcement efforts are not sufficiently robust to protect against the harms set forth above, the federal government may seek to challenge the regulatory structure itself in addition to continuing to bring individual enforcement actions, including criminal prosecutions, focused on those harms.

The Department's previous memoranda specifically addressed the exercise of prosecutorial discretion in states with laws authorizing marijuana cultivation and distribution for medical use. In those contexts, the Department advised that it likely was not an efficient use of federal resources to focus enforcement efforts on seriously ill individuals, or on their individual caregivers. In doing so, the previous guidance drew a distinction between the seriously ill and their caregivers, on the one hand, and large-scale, for-profit commercial enterprises, on the other, and advised that the latter continued to be appropriate targets for federal enforcement and prosecution. In drawing this distinction, the Department relied on the common-sense judgment that the size of a marijuana operation was a reasonable proxy for assessing whether marijuana trafficking implicates the federal enforcement priorities set forth above.

As explained above, however, both the existence of a strong and effective state regulatory system, and an operation's compliance with such a system, may allay the threat that an operation's size poses to federal enforcement interests. Accordingly, in exercising prosecutorial discretion, prosecutors should not consider the size or commercial nature of a marijuana operation alone as a proxy for assessing whether marijuana trafficking implicates the Department's enforcement priorities listed above. Rather, prosecutors should continue to review marijuana cases on a case-by-case basis and weigh all available information and evidence, including, but not limited to, whether the operation is demonstrably in compliance with a strong and effective state regulatory system. A marijuana operation's large scale or for-profit nature may be a relevant consideration for assessing the extent to which it undermines a particular federal enforcement priority. The primary question in all cases – and in all jurisdictions – should be whether the conduct at issue implicates one or more of the enforcement priorities listed above.

As with the Department's previous statements on this subject, this memorandum is intended solely as a guide to the exercise of investigative and prosecutorial discretion. This memorandum does not alter in any way the Department's authority to enforce federal law, including federal laws relating to marijuana, regardless of state law. Neither the guidance herein nor any state or local law provides a legal defense to a violation of federal law, including any civil or criminal violation of the CSA. Even in jurisdictions with strong and effective regulatory systems, evidence that particular conduct threatens federal priorities will subject that person or entity to federal enforcement action, based on the circumstances. This memorandum is not intended to, does not, and may not be relied upon to create any rights, substantive or procedural, enforceable at law by any party in any matter civil or criminal. It applies prospectively to the exercise of prosecutorial discretion in future cases and does not provide defendants or subjects of enforcement action with a basis for reconsideration of any pending civil action or criminal prosecution. Finally, nothing herein precludes investigation or prosecution, even in the absence of any one of the factors listed above, in particular circumstances where investigation and prosecution otherwise serves an important federal interest.

Guidance

FIN-2014-G001

Issued: February 14, 2014

Subject: BSA Expectations Regarding Marijuana-Related Businesses

The Financial Crimes Enforcement Network ("FinCEN") is issuing guidance to clarify Bank Secrecy Act ("BSA") expectations for financial institutions seeking to provide services to marijuana-related businesses. FinCEN is issuing this guidance in light of recent state initiatives to legalize certain marijuana-related activity and related guidance by the U.S. Department of Justice ("DOJ") concerning marijuana-related enforcement priorities. This FinCEN guidance clarifies how financial institutions can provide services to marijuana-related businesses consistent with their BSA obligations, and aligns the information provided by financial institutions in BSA reports with federal and state law enforcement priorities. This FinCEN guidance should enhance the availability of financial services for, and the financial transparency of, marijuana-related businesses.

Marijuana Laws and Law Enforcement Priorities

The Controlled Substances Act ("CSA") makes it illegal under federal law to manufacture, distribute, or dispense marijuana. Many states impose and enforce similar prohibitions. Notwithstanding the federal ban, as of the date of this guidance, 20 states and the District of Columbia have legalized certain marijuana-related activity. In light of these developments, U.S. Department of Justice Deputy Attorney General James M. Cole issued a memorandum (the "Cole Memo") to all United States Attorneys providing updated guidance to federal prosecutors concerning marijuana enforcement under the CSA. The Cole Memo guidance applies to all of DOJ's federal enforcement activity, including civil enforcement and criminal investigations and prosecutions, concerning marijuana in all states.

The Cole Memo reiterates Congress's determination that marijuana is a dangerous drug and that the illegal distribution and sale of marijuana is a serious crime that provides a significant source of revenue to large-scale criminal enterprises, gangs, and cartels. The Cole Memo notes that DOJ is committed to enforcement of the CSA consistent with those determinations. It also notes that DOJ is committed to using its investigative and prosecutorial resources to address the most significant threats in the most effective, consistent, and rational way. In furtherance of those objectives, the Cole Memo provides guidance to DOJ attorneys and law enforcement to focus their enforcement resources on persons or organizations whose conduct interferes with any one or more of the following important priorities (the "Cole Memo priorities"):³

- Preventing the distribution of marijuana to minors;
- Preventing revenue from the sale of marijuana from going to criminal enterprises, gangs, and cartels;
- Preventing the diversion of marijuana from states where it is legal under state law in some form to other states;
- Preventing state-authorized marijuana activity from being used as a cover or pretext for the trafficking of other illegal drugs or other illegal activity;
- Preventing violence and the use of firearms in the cultivation and distribution of marijuana;
- Preventing drugged driving and the exacerbation of other adverse public health consequences associated with marijuana use;
- Preventing the growing of marijuana on public lands and the attendant public safety and environmental dangers posed by marijuana production on public lands; and
- Preventing marijuana possession or use on federal property.

Concurrently with this FinCEN guidance, Deputy Attorney General Cole is issuing supplemental guidance directing that prosecutors also consider these enforcement priorities with respect to federal money laundering, unlicensed money transmitter, and BSA offenses predicated on marijuana-related violations of the CSA.⁴

Providing Financial Services to Marijuana-Related Businesses

This FinCEN guidance clarifies how financial institutions can provide services to marijuanarelated businesses consistent with their BSA obligations. In general, the decision to open, close, or refuse any particular account or relationship should be made by each financial institution based on a number of factors specific to that institution. These factors may include its particular business objectives, an evaluation of the risks associated with offering a particular product or service, and its capacity to manage those risks effectively. Thorough customer due diligence is a critical aspect of making this assessment.

In assessing the risk of providing services to a marijuana-related business, a financial institution should conduct customer due diligence that includes: (i) verifying with the appropriate state authorities whether the business is duly licensed and registered; (ii) reviewing the license application (and related documentation) submitted by the business for obtaining a state license to operate its marijuana-related business; (iii) requesting from state licensing and enforcement authorities available information about the business and related parties; (iv) developing an understanding of the normal and expected activity for the business, including the types of products to be sold and the type of customers to be served (e.g., medical versus recreational customers); (v) ongoing monitoring of publicly available sources for adverse information about the business and related parties; (vi) ongoing monitoring for suspicious activity, including for any of the red flags described in this guidance; and (vii) refreshing information obtained as part of customer due diligence on a periodic basis and commensurate with the risk. With respect to information regarding state licensure obtained in connection with such customer due diligence, a financial institution may reasonably rely on the accuracy of information provided by state licensing authorities, where states make such information available.

As part of its customer due diligence, a financial institution should consider whether a marijuana-related business implicates one of the Cole Memo priorities or violates state law. This is a particularly important factor for a financial institution to consider when assessing the risk of providing financial services to a marijuana-related business. Considering this factor also enables the financial institution to provide information in BSA reports pertinent to law enforcement's priorities. A financial institution that decides to provide financial services to a marijuana-related business would be required to file suspicious activity reports ("SARs") as described below.

Filing Suspicious Activity Reports on Marijuana-Related Businesses

The obligation to file a SAR is unaffected by any state law that legalizes marijuana-related activity. A financial institution is required to file a SAR if, consistent with FinCEN regulations, the financial institution knows, suspects, or has reason to suspect that a transaction conducted or attempted by, at, or through the financial institution: (i) involves funds derived from illegal activity or is an attempt to disguise funds derived from illegal activity; (ii) is designed to evade regulations promulgated under the BSA, or (iii) lacks a business or apparent lawful purpose. Because federal law prohibits the distribution and sale of marijuana, financial transactions involving a marijuana-related business would generally involve funds derived from illegal activity. Therefore, a financial institution is required to file a SAR on activity involving a marijuana-related business (including those duly licensed under state law), in accordance with this guidance and FinCEN's suspicious activity reporting requirements and related thresholds.

One of the BSA's purposes is to require financial institutions to file reports that are highly useful in criminal investigations and proceedings. The guidance below furthers this objective by assisting financial institutions in determining how to file a SAR that facilitates law enforcement's access to information pertinent to a priority.

"Marijuana Limited" SAR Filings

A financial institution providing financial services to a marijuana-related business that it reasonably believes, based on its customer due diligence, does not implicate one of the Cole Memo priorities or violate state law should file a "Marijuana Limited" SAR. The content of this ⁵ See, e.g., 31 CFR § 1020.320. Financial institutions shall file with FinCEN, to the extent and in the manner required, a report of any suspicious transaction relevant to a possible violation of law or regulation. A financial institution may also file with FinCEN a SAR with respect to any suspicious transaction that it believes is relevant to the possible violation of any law or regulation but whose reporting is not required by FinCEN regulations.

SAR should be limited to the following information: (i) identifying information of the subject and related parties; (ii) addresses of the subject and related parties; (iii) the fact that the filing institution is filing the SAR solely because the subject is engaged in a marijuana-related business; and (iv) the fact that no additional suspicious activity has been identified. Financial institutions should use the term "MARIJUANA LIMITED" in the narrative section.

A financial institution should follow FinCEN's existing guidance on the timing of filing continuing activity reports for the same activity initially reported on a "Marijuana Limited" SAR. The continuing activity report may contain the same limited content as the initial SAR, plus details about the amount of deposits, withdrawals, and transfers in the account since the last SAR. However, if, in the course of conducting customer due diligence (including ongoing monitoring for red flags), the financial institution detects changes in activity that potentially implicate one of the Cole Memo priorities or violate state law, the financial institution should file a "Marijuana Priority" SAR.

"Marijuana Priority" SAR Filings

A financial institution filing a SAR on a marijuana-related business that it reasonably believes, based on its customer due diligence, implicates one of the Cole Memo priorities or violates state law should file a "Marijuana Priority" SAR. The content of this SAR should include comprehensive detail in accordance with existing regulations and guidance. Details particularly relevant to law enforcement in this context include: (i) identifying information of the subject and related parties; (ii) addresses of the subject and related parties; (iii) details regarding the enforcement priorities the financial institution believes have been implicated; and (iv) dates, amounts, and other relevant details of financial transactions involved in the suspicious activity. Financial institutions should use the term "MARIJUANA PRIORITY" in the narrative section to help law enforcement distinguish these SARs.⁷

"Marijuana Termination" SAR Filings

If a financial institution deems it necessary to terminate a relationship with a marijuana-related business in order to maintain an effective anti-money laundering compliance program, it should ⁶ Frequently Asked Questions Regarding the FinCEN Suspicious Activity Report (Question #16), available at: http://fincen.gov/whatsnew/html/sar_faqs.html (providing guidance on the filing timeframe for submitting a continuing activity report).

⁷ FinCEN recognizes that a financial institution filing a SAR on a marijuana-related business may not always be well-positioned to determine whether the business implicates one of the Cole Memo priorities or violates state law, and thus which terms would be most appropriate to include (i.e., "Marijuana Limited" or "Marijuana Priority"). For example, a financial institution could be providing services to another domestic financial institution that, in turn, provides financial services to a marijuana-related business. Similarly, a financial institution could be providing services to a non-financial customer that provides goods or services to a marijuana-related business (e.g., a commercial landlord that leases property to a marijuana-related business). In such circumstances where services are being provided indirectly, the financial institution may file SARs based on existing regulations and guidance without distinguishing between "Marijuana Limited" and "Marijuana Priority." Whether the financial institution decides to provide indirect services to a marijuana-related business is a risk-based decision that depends on a number of factors specific to that institution and the relevant circumstances. In making this decision, the institution should consider the Cole Memo priorities, to the extent applicable.

file a SAR and note in the narrative the basis for the termination. Financial institutions should use the term "MARIJUANA TERMINATION" in the narrative section. To the extent the financial institution becomes aware that the marijuana-related business seeks to move to a second financial institution, FinCEN urges the first institution to use Section 314(b) voluntary information sharing (if it qualifies) to alert the second financial institution of potential illegal activity. See Section 314(b) Fact Sheet for more information. 8

Red Flags to Distinguish Priority SARs

The following red flags indicate that a marijuana-related business may be engaged in activity that implicates one of the Cole Memo priorities or violates state law. These red flags indicate only possible signs of such activity, and also do not constitute an exhaustive list. It is thus important to view any red flag(s) in the context of other indicators and facts, such as the financial institution's knowledge about the underlying parties obtained through its customer due diligence. Further, the presence of any of these red flags in a given transaction or business arrangement may indicate a need for additional due diligence, which could include seeking information from other involved financial institutions under Section 314(b). These red flags are based primarily upon schemes and typologies described in SARs or identified by our law enforcement and regulatory partners, and may be updated in future guidance.

- A customer appears to be using a state-licensed marijuana-related business as a front or pretext to launder money derived from other criminal activity (i.e., not related to marijuana) or derived from marijuana-related activity not permitted under state law.
 Relevant indicia could include:
 - The business receives substantially more revenue than may reasonably be expected given the relevant limitations imposed by the state in which it operates.
 - The business receives substantially more revenue than its local competitors or than might be expected given the population demographics.
 - The business is depositing more cash than is commensurate with the amount of marijuana-related revenue it is reporting for federal and state tax purposes.
 - O The business is unable to demonstrate that its revenue is derived exclusively from the sale of marijuana in compliance with state law, as opposed to revenue derived from (i) the sale of other illicit drugs, (ii) the sale of marijuana not in compliance with state law, or (iii) other illegal activity.
 - o The business makes cash deposits or withdrawals over a short period of time that are excessive relative to local competitors or the expected activity of the business.

⁸ Information Sharing Between Financial Institutions: Section 314(b) Fact Sheet, available at: http://fincen.gov/statutes_regs/patriot/pdf/314bfactsheet.pdf.

- Deposits apparently structured to avoid Currency Transaction Report ("CTR") requirements.
- o Rapid movement of funds, such as cash deposits followed by immediate cash withdrawals.
- o Deposits by third parties with no apparent connection to the accountholder.
- o Excessive commingling of funds with the personal account of the business's owner(s) or manager(s), or with accounts of seemingly unrelated businesses.
- o Individuals conducting transactions for the business appear to be acting on behalf of other, undisclosed parties of interest.
- o Financial statements provided by the business to the financial institution are inconsistent with actual account activity.
- o A surge in activity by third parties offering goods or services to marijuana-related businesses, such as equipment suppliers or shipping servicers.
- The business is unable to produce satisfactory documentation or evidence to demonstrate that it is duly licensed and operating consistently with state law.
- The business is unable to demonstrate the legitimate source of significant outside investments.
- A customer seeks to conceal or disguise involvement in marijuana-related business activity. For example, the customer may be using a business with a non-descript name (e.g., a "consulting," "holding," or "management" company) that purports to engage in commercial activity unrelated to marijuana, but is depositing cash that smells like marijuana.
- Review of publicly available sources and databases about the business, its owner(s), manager(s), or other related parties, reveal negative information, such as a criminal record, involvement in the illegal purchase or sale of drugs, violence, or other potential connections to illicit activity.
- The business, its owner(s), manager(s), or other related parties are, or have been, subject to an enforcement action by the state or local authorities responsible for administering or enforcing marijuana-related laws or regulations.
- A marijuana-related business engages in international or interstate activity, including by receiving cash deposits from locations outside the state in which the business operates, making or receiving frequent or large interstate transfers, or otherwise transacting with persons or entities located in different states or countries.

- The owner(s) or manager(s) of a marijuana-related business reside outside the state in which the business is located.
- A marijuana-related business is located on federal property or the marijuana sold by the business was grown on federal property.
- A marijuana-related business's proximity to a school is not compliant with state law.
- A marijuana-related business purporting to be a "non-profit" is engaged in commercial activity inconsistent with that classification, or is making excessive payments to its manager(s) or employee(s).

Currency Transaction Reports and Form 8300's

Financial institutions and other persons subject to FinCEN's regulations must report currency transactions in connection with marijuana-related businesses the same as they would in any other context, consistent with existing regulations and with the same thresholds that apply. For example, banks and money services businesses would need to file CTRs on the receipt or withdrawal by any person of more than $10,000 in cash per day. Similarly, any person or entity engaged in a non-financial trade or business would need to report transactions in which they receive more than $10,000 in cash and other monetary instruments for the purchase of goods or services on FinCEN Form 8300 (Report of Cash Payments Over $10,000 Received in a Trade or Business). A business engaged in marijuana-related activity may not be treated as a non-listed business under 31 C.F.R. § 1020.315(e)(8), and therefore, is not eligible for consideration for an exemption with respect to a bank's CTR obligations under 31 C.F.R. § 1020.315(b)(6).

FinCEN's enforcement priorities in connection with this guidance will focus on matters of systemic or significant failures, and not isolated lapses in technical compliance. Financial institutions with questions about this guidance are encouraged to contact FinCEN's Resource Center at (800) 767-2825, where industry questions can be addressed and monitored for the purpose of providing any necessary additional guidance.

Instructions

- Break up into small groups.
- Select a recorder
- Review the Handout
- Instructor will assign 1 to 2 of the findings to each group; in your group identify the intent of the standard assigned;
 - Think about if additional TICS/SICS are necessary and who would be responsible
 - If time permits identify what those additional TICS/SIC would include.
- 5. Identify controls to be included for that standard.
 - Are controls measureable
 - Do the controls include who is responsible?
 - It has to be usable, understandable, achievable, and have full TGRA support.

Key Points:

In your assigned group, discuss and list the roles as they relate to Player Tracking System standards [543.12(c)] for the TGRA, Operation, Auditing Revenue, or Internal Audit as assigned by the instructors.

Key Points:

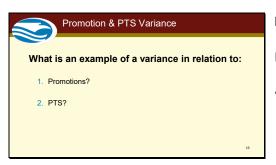

Changes to the PTS parameters can be made by a Marketing/Players Club Agent as long as there is a verification performed to check the changes made.

Is someone independent of Marketing/Players Club always the best choice to perform changes in the PTS?

- May want to consider:
 - · Familiarity with the system
 - Frequency of changes (any changes needed to coincide with promotions?)

Consideration for TICS/SICS

- Define who will be responsible and authorized to make changes to the PTS
 - When a change is needed, how is it approved/authorized before the change in the PTS is made?
 - Who must approve the change?

Key Points:

Important to define variance threshold for promotions and PTS.

- Considerations when defining promotional variance thresholds:
 - The gaming operation never does cash promotions so they can't have a variance? What if the name on the promotional payout form does not match the name drawn by the system?
 - What if the rules said there would be 4 hot seat drawings on a specific night and there were 5?
 - Does it have to be "cash" to be a variance worth reviewing/investigating?
- Considerations when defining PTS variance thresholds:
 - Point/Reward accrual parameters
 - Promotional parameters and timelines

College Football Ticket Giveaway – Case Study

Casino XYZ conducted a promotion where they had a drawing for tickets to a local college football game.

The promotion stated that the Player Tracking System would randomly select a winner from the eligible players.

The Casino created the following documentation as part of the Promotional payout process:

- System report showing the name drawn with time and date
- Promotional payout form to document the name of the winning patron and Casino agent authorizing/making the payout

After the promotion Revenue Audit received the documentation of the promotional payout. After reviewing both the system generated report of the name drawn and the promotional payout form showing which patron was given the prize, the following was found:

• The name on the system report as the winning name drawn did not match the name on the promotional payout form

The exception was provided to Management who investigated the reason for the exception.

Upon investigation it was determined that the Players Club agent who conducted the drawing and payout had been approached in the bathroom shortly before the drawing. A patron paid the Players Club agent to call her husband's name to win the tickets. The Players Club agent conducted the drawing in the system, but called a different name as the winner.

This section does not apply to payouts for card game promotional pots and/or pools.
 - (1) All payments must be documented to support the cage accountability.
 - (2) Payments above $600 (or lesser amount as approved by TGRA) must be documented at the time of the payment, and documentation must include the following:
 - (i) Date and time;
 - (ii) Dollar amount of payment or description of personal property;
 - (iii) Reason for payment; and
 - (iv) Patron's name and confirmation that identity was verified (drawings only).
 - (v) Signature(s) of at least two agents verifying, authorizing, and completing the promotional payment with the patron. For computerized systems that validate and print the dollar amount of the payment on a computer generated form, only one signature is required.

PART 543—MINIMUM INTERNAL CONTROL STANDARDS FOR CLASS II GAMING

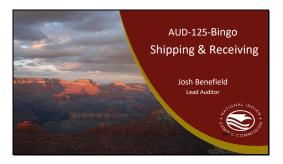

§543.12 What are the minimum internal control standards for gaming promotions and player tracking systems?

- (a) Supervision. Supervision must be provided as needed for gaming promotions and player tracking by an agent(s) with authority equal to or greater than those being supervised.
- (b) Gaming promotions. The rules of the gaming promotion must be displayed or made readily available to patron upon request. Gaming promotions rules require TGRA approval and must include the following:
 - (1) The rules of play;
 - (2) The nature and value of the associated prize(s) or cash award(s);
 - (3) Any restrictions or limitations on participant eligibility;
 - (4) The date(s), time(s), and location(s) for the associated promotional activity or activities;
 - (5) Any other restrictions or limitations, including any related to the claim of prizes or cash awards;
 - (6) The announcement date(s), time(s), and location(s) for the winning entry or entries; and
 - (7) Rules governing promotions offered across multiple gaming operations, third party sponsored promotions, and joint promotions involving third parties.
- (c) Player tracking systems and gaming promotions.
 - (1) Changes to the player tracking systems, promotion and external bonusing system parameters, which control features such as the awarding of bonuses, the issuance of cashable credits, non-cashable credits, coupons and vouchers, must be performed under the authority of supervisory agents, independent of the department initiating the change. Alternatively, the changes may be performed by supervisory agents of the department initiating the change if sufficient documentation is generated and the propriety of the changes are randomly verified by supervisory agents independent of the department initiating the change on a monthly basis.
 - (2) All other changes to the player tracking system must be appropriately documented.
- (d) Variances. The operation must establish, as approved by the TGRA, the threshold level at which a variance must be reviewed to determine the cause. Any such review must be documented.

Key Points:

The MICS Part 543 provides a foundation to begin creating controls, but may not provide sufficient controls for each individual operation.

The TICS add to the foundation by providing additional control framework by filling in the gaps (establishing thresholds as needed, adding more detail, etc.)

The SICS should provide the finished product by describing the "how" an operation will be able to comply with the MICS and TICS.

Three types of controls:

- Preventive Designed to prevent undesirable events from occurring
 - Preventive controls are built into, not onto, the system.
 Example: separation of duties

AUD-125 Shipping and Receiving

- Detective Designed to detect undesirable events which have occurred
 - Detective controls are deferred to the end of the process. Example: review of documentation
- Corrective Designed to cause or encourage a future event to occur in the event an undesirable event occurred.
 - Examples: Investigation, training, re-performance

Key Points:

- In your group, come up with 5 or more risks associated with Shipping and Receiving hardware/software for electronic bingo games
- What risks are involved in Shipping and Receiving hardware/software for electronic bingo games?

AUD-125 Shipping and Receiving

Key Points:

Group Activity: Time: 5-10 mins Supplies: Paper Marker

A communication procedure must be established between the supplier, the gaming operation, and the TGRA and address:

- Notification of pending shipments
- Certification with Part 547
- Notification of shipping and delivery date

Consideration for TICS

- What will be acceptable forms of communication?
- Is there a designated agent/office/department at the TGRA?

Consideration for SICS

- · How will communication be documented?
- Who will be the designated agent/office/department involved?

Instructions:

- 1. Separate the class out into teams.
- 2. The team will line up.
- 3. The first person in the line will look at the picture and then draw the picture that the presenter drew.
- 4. They will show the next person in line. (steps 3-4 repeated with next person in line) Review the pictures drawn.

Key Points:

• So the standards require the TGRA, Gaming Operation and Supplier to have a communication process.

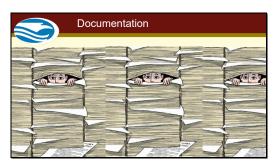

Consideration for TICS and SICS

Who specifically at the TGRA and Gaming Operation are doing the communicating?

Who else do you feel needs to be involved?

AUD-125 Shipping and Receiving

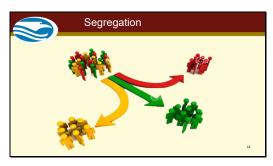

Key Points:

Consideration for TICS

- What specific items do you want to be documented in the process?
- Who is responsible on the TGRA side for creating and/or maintaining documentation related to the TGRA?

Consideration for SICS

- How will the operation document the process?
 - Example: Checklists and/or forms
- Who on the operation side will be responsible for completing any required documentation?

Key Points:

543.8(g)(1) addresses some segregation of duties.

 The TGRA (or designee) must receive all Class II system components and game play software packages

Segregation of duties ensures no one individual has control of a process from start to finish:

• i.e. the standards do not allow for only one individual to be part of the process for shipping and receiving technological aids

Consideration for TICS

- Are there any other parts of the process that may need additional segregation?
- If the TGRA does not receive items but has an authorized designee ensure the designee is independent of the electronic bingo games department

Consideration for SICS

• On the operation side, do you want to require the involvement of anyone independent of the electronic bingo games department in the process? Example: a compliance agent who is part of communication and ensures all documentation is completed

Key Points:

If you have any questions in the future, please contact NIGC.

JOHN KANE WAS ON a hell of a winning streak. On July 3, 2009, he walked alone into the high-limit room at the Silverton Casino in Las Vegas and sat down at a video poker machine called the Game King. Six minutes later the purple light on the top of the machine flashed, signaling a $4,300 jackpot. Kane waited while the slot attendant verified the win and presented the IRS paperwork—a procedure required for any win of $1,200 or greater—then, 11 minutes later, ding ding ling!, a $2,800 win. A $4,150 jackpot rolled in a few minutes after that.

All the while, the casino's director of surveillance, Charles Williams, was peering down at Kane through a camera hidden in a ceiling dome. Tall, with a high brow and an aquiline nose, the 50-year-old Kane had the patrician bearing of a man better suited to playing a Mozart piano concerto than listening to the chirping of a slot machine. Even his play was refined: the way he rested his long fingers on the buttons and swept them in a graceful legato, smoothly selecting good cards, discarding bad ones, accepting jackpot after jackpot with the vaguely put-upon air of a creditor finally collecting an overdue debt.

Williams could see that Kane was wielding none of the array of cheating devices that casinos had confiscated from grifters over the years. He wasn't jamming a light wand in the machine's hopper or zapping the Game King with an electromagnetic pulse. He was simply pressing the buttons. But he was winning far too much, too fast, to be relying on luck alone.

At 12:34 pm, the Game King lit up with its seventh jackpot in an hour and a half, a $10,400 payout. Now Williams knew something was wrong: The cards dealt on the screen were the exact same four deuces and four of clubs that yielded Kane's previous jackpot. The odds against that were astronomical. Williams called over the executive in charge of the Silverton's slots, and they reviewed the surveillance tape together.

The evidence was mounting that Kane had found something unthinkable: the kind of thing gamblers dream of, casinos dread, and Nevada regulators have an entire auditing regime to prevent. He'd found a bug in the most popular video slot in Las Vegas.

As they watched the replay for clues, Kane chalked up an eighth jackpot worth $8,200, and Williams decided not to wait any longer. He contacted the Silverton's head of security, a formidable character with slicked-back silver hair and a black suit, and positioned him outside the slot area. His orders: Make sure John Kane doesn't leave the casino.

Virtuoso pianist John Kane discovered an exploitable software bug in Game King poker machines. MICHAEL FRIBERG

Kane had discovered the glitch in the Game King three months earlier on the other end of town, at the unpretentious Fremont Hotel and Casino in downtown's Glitter Gulch. He was overdue for a lucky break. Since the Game King had gotten its hooks in him years earlier he'd lost between tens of thousands and hundreds of thousands annually. At his previous haunt, the locals-friendly Boulder Station, he blew half a million dollars in 2006 alone—a pace that earned him enough Player's Club points to pay for his own Game King to play at his home on the outskirts of Vegas, along with technicians to service it. (The machine was just for fun—it didn't pay jackpots.) "He's played more than anyone else in the United States," says his lawyer, Andrew Leavitt. "I'm not exaggerating or embellishing. It's an addiction."

To understand video poker addiction, you have to start with the deceptively simple appeal of the game. You put some money in the machine, place a bet of one to five credits, and the computer deals you a poker hand. Select the cards you want to keep, slap the Draw button, and the machine replaces the discards. Your final hand determines the payout.

When the first video poker machine hit casinos in the 1970s, it was a phenomenal success—gamblers loved that they could make decisions that affected the outcome instead of just pulling a handle and watching the reels spin. The patent holder started a company called International Game Technology that debuted on the Nasdaq in 1981.

IGT's key insight was to tap into the vast flexibility offered by computerized gambling. In 1996, the company perfected its formula with the Game King Multi-Game, which allowed players to choose from several variations on video poker. Casinos snatched up the Game King, and IGT sold them regular firmware upgrades that added still more games to the menu. On September 25, 2002, the company released its fifth major revision—Game King 5.0. Its marketing material was triumphal: "Full of new enhancements, including state-of-the-art video graphics and enhanced stereo sound, the Game King 5.0 Multi-Game suite is sure to rule over your entire casino floor with unprecedented magnificence!" But the new Game King code had one feature that wasn't in the brochure—a series of subtle errors in program number G0001640 that evaded laboratory testing and source code review.

The bug survived like a cockroach for the next seven years. It passed into new revisions, one after another, ultimately infecting 99 different programs installed in thousands of IGT machines around the world. As far as anyone knows, it went completely undetected until late April 2009, when John Kane was playing at a row of four low-limit Game Kings outside the entrance to a Chinese fast food joint at the Fremont, smoke swirling around him and '90s pop music raining down from the casino sound system.

He'd been switching between game variations and racking up a modest payout. But when he hit the Cash Out button to take his money to another machine, the candle lit at the top of the Game King and the screen locked up with a jackpot worth more than $1,000. Kane hadn't even played a new hand, so he knew there was a mistake. He told a casino attendant about the error, but the worker thought he was joking and gave him the money anyway.

At that point, Kane could have forgotten the whole thing. Instead, he called a friend and embarked on the biggest gamble of his life.

Even before the phone rang in his suburban Pittsburgh home, Andre Nestor had a gut feeling that everything was about to change for him. Superstitious and prone to hunches, he'd felt it coming for days: April 30, 2009, would be exactly 15 years since Nestor ignored an urge to play a set of numbers that came up in the Pennsylvania lottery Big 4.

That was the story of his life—always playing the right numbers at the wrong time. Games of chance had been courting and betraying Nestor since he was old enough to gamble. In 2001 he'd moved to Las Vegas to be closer to the action, answering phones for a bank during the day and wagering his meager paycheck at night. That's when he met John Kane in an AOL chatroom for Vegas locals. Though Nestor was 13 years younger than Kane and perpetually flirting with poverty, they developed an intense addicts' friendship.

Nestor's records show he lost about $20,000 a year for six years before he gave up, said good-bye to Kane, and moved back to the sleepy Pittsburgh suburb of Swissvale, Pennsylvania, in 2007. For about two years he had a stable life, living off public assistance, gambling infrequently, and playing the occasional lottery ticket. Then Kane called to tell him about a bug he'd found in video poker. Nestor drove to the airport that night and camped there until the next available flight to Las Vegas.

Kane picked him up at the curb at McCarran airport. After a quick breakfast, they drove to the Fremont, took adjacent seats at two Game Kings, and went to work. Kane had some idea of how the glitch operated but hadn't been able to reliably reproduce it. Working together, the two men began trying different combinations of play, game types, and bet levels, sounding out the bug like bats in the dark.

It turned out the Game King's endless versatility was also its fatal flaw. In addition to different game variants, the machine lets you choose the base level of your wagers: At the low-limit Fremont machines, you could select six different denomination levels, from 1 cent to 50 cents a credit.

"You had complete control," Andre Nestor says. "You could win $500,000 in one day." (a) MICHAEL FRIBERG

The key to the glitch was that under just the right circumstances, you could switch denomination levels retroactively. That meant you could play at 1 cent per credit for hours, losing pocket change, until you finally got a good hand—like four aces or a royal flush. Then you could change to 50 cents a credit and fool the machine into re-awarding your payout at the new, higher denomination.

Performing that trick consistently wasn't easy—it involved a complicated misdirection that left the Game King's internal variables in a state of confusion. But after seven hours rooted to their seats, Kane and Nestor boiled it down to a step-by-step recipe that would work every time.

Nestor and Kane each rang up a few jackpots, then broke for a celebratory dinner, at which they planned their next move. They would have to expand beyond the Fremont before the casino noticed how much they were winning. Fortunately, Game Kings are ubiquitous in Vegas, installed everywhere from the corner 7-Eleven to the toniest luxury casino. They mapped out their campaign and then headed back to Kane's home for the night.

Kane lived in a spacious house at the far northeast edge of town. His Game King was in the foyer. A spare bedroom down the hall was devoted entirely to a model train set, an elaborate, detailed miniature with tracks snaking and climbing through model towns, up hills, across bridges, and through tunnels, every detail perfect. The home's centerpiece was the living room with its three Steinway grand pianos. Kane is a virtuoso pianist; in the early 1980s he was a leading dance accompanist in the Chicago area, and even today he sells recordings under the vanity label Keynote Records. He left the professional music world only after failing to advance in the prestigious Van Cliburn International Piano Competition. Now he ran a management consulting practice that claimed one-third of the Fortune 100 as clients.

Kane's business was lucrative, so he was accustomed to handling money. But now that they were on the verge of a windfall, he was worried about Nestor; he could see his younger friend returning every cent to the casinos at the roulette tables or blowing it all on frivolities. "If you had a million dollars, what 10 things would you do?" Kane asked him. He wanted Nestor to make a list and really think through his priorities.

Nestor started a list, but it would prove unnecessary. After another day at the Fremont, they branched out. To their surprise, the button sequence didn't work. Over the following days, they explored the Hilton, the Cannery, then the Stratosphere, Terrible's, the Hard Rock, the Tropicana, the Luxor, and five other casinos, drawing the same dismal results everywhere. For some reason, the Game King glitch was only present at the Fremont.

At the end of a frustrating week, Nestor headed to the airport for his return flight with just $8,000 in winnings. As a final insult, he lost $700 in a video poker machine while waiting for his plane.

Kane decided to wring what he could from the four Fremont machines. He learned to speed up the process by using the Game King's Double Up feature, which gave players a chance to double their winnings or lose everything. Respectable payouts that might once have satisfied Kane were garbage now. After five weeks using the new strategy, Kane had pocketed more than $100,000 from the Fremont.

Unsurprisingly, the Fremont noticed. In modern casinos, every slot machine in the house is wired to a central server, where statistical deviations stick out like a fifth ace. The four machines under the Chinese food sign shot to the top of the Fremont's "loser list" of underperforming games: They'd gone from providing the casino a reliable $14,500 a month to costing it $75,000 in May alone.

On May 25, a slot manager approached Kane after one of his wins and announced that he was disabling the Double Up feature on all of the Game Kings—he was aware that Kane used the option copiously, and he figured it must have something to do with his run of luck.

Kane took the development in stride: The bug, not the Double Up, was the real secret of his success. But he was in for a shock. The next time he played the Game King, the magic button sequence no longer worked. In an instant, the Fremont was no better than all the other casinos that had been immune to the glitch.

He phoned Nestor, who processed the news. With the Double Up option turned on, the bug worked; turned off, it didn't. Whatever internal stew of code made the Game King exploitable, Nestor concluded, the Double Up option had been a key ingredient the whole time. They just hadn't known it.

This wasn't bad news at all. It was the missing link. It explained why the bug had failed them everywhere but at the Fremont. Most casinos don't enable Double Up because it's unpopular with players. But that could easily be changed. High rollers and slot aficionados often have favorite game variants or features that aren't available by default but can be enabled by any passing slot attendant.

Nestor purchased two dress shirts and caught another flight to Las Vegas, where he joined Kane at Harrah's. Row after row of Game Kings were waiting, and, true to the plan, the staff didn't hesitate when Kane and Nestor asked for Double Up to be enabled.

Nestor got the first significant winning hand of the trip: four fours and a kicker for $500. He tapped the magic sequence, hit Cash Out, and watched with delight as his $500 became a $10,000 jackpot. He tipped the slot attendant $20.

There were no limits now. They could play anywhere and beat the house wherever they went. Nestor, who'd been scraping by on a $1,000-a-month welfare check, saw a whole new future unfolding: home ownership, an investment account, security, better clothes, and gifts for his friends back home. For his part, Kane was already well on his way to erasing the massive losses he'd suffered since moving to Sin City.

Working as a team had its advantages. While experimenting with the bug, they discovered that they could trigger a jackpot on the same hand more than once: All they had to do was lower the denomination again and repeat the steps to activate the glitch. They could effectively replay their win over and over, as much as they wanted. It was a risky play—even the busiest casino might notice the same player repeatedly winning with the same hand. But now that they were playing together, Kane and Nestor could ride on each other's jackpots. Nestor won $4,000 with four aces; then, after waiting a bit, Kane slid over to the same machine and replayed the hand for another $4,000.

They could even piggyback on other players' wins. No longer confined to four low-limit slots at a single casino, they prowled the floor at Harrah's looking for empty machines still showing a player's jackpot. Once they got an attendant to turn on Double Up, it took only seconds to replay the hand at up to 10 times the original value. Video poker wasn't even gambling anymore. "You had complete control over how much you could win," Nestor says. "If you wanted to go to a casino and win $500,000 in one day, you could win $500,000 in one day."

At the end of the evening, Nestor says they went to his cheap hotel room at Bill's Gamblin' Hall and Saloon to settle up. As the benefactor of Kane's discovery, Nestor had agreed to give his old friend half his winnings. But now that the cash was rolling in, he was having second thoughts about the arrangement.

Every jackpot, he realized, was being reported to the IRS, and he'd already won enough from the bug to propel him into a higher tax bracket. If he paid half to Kane off the top, he might wind up without the reserves to pay his tax debt come April of the following year. He broached the subject with Kane: He'd be more comfortable holding on to the money until his taxes were paid. It was just a year. He'd happily give Kane half of his post-tax winnings then.

Kane was indignant but not surprised; leave it to Nestor to turn even free money into a problem to obsess over. He insisted Nestor honor his agreement, and Nestor grew more agitated, his voice rising in pitch. "What am I doing? Why am I even doing this?" he complained. "I'm not winning any money doing this if I'm giving you all this up front."

Kane finally agreed to accept a third of Nestor's $20,000 take for the day. Nestor says he counted out $6,000 in hundreds onto an end table, and Kane said good night.

The tension between the men lingered the next day at the Wynn, a towering upscale supercasino with more than 1,300 slots. They played side by side, raking in money and continuing to argue over the split. Nestor was now of the opinion that he shouldn't have to pay Kane anything. It was Nestor, after all, who'd figured out that the Double Up feature was part of the bug. That should make them square.

"This was my gift to you," Kane shot back testily. "If you'd found this bug instead of me, you would never have told me about it."

The accusation stung. Nestor gaped at his friend, then he stood and walked away from the machine.

The next day Nestor nursed his hurt feelings with a solo trip to the Rio. He found a Game King displaying four aces and a kicker and hit it for $5,600. Then he wandered into the high-limit room and found another four aces. He punched this one twice: $20,000 at a $5 denomination, then, after a decent interval, $8,000 at the $2 level. Nestor's records show that he eventually left the casino with about $34,000 in his pockets. He didn't need Kane at all. "There was so much money to be made, what did it even matter?" he says.

On his last day in Vegas, Nestor continued his solo run, hitting a Game King at the Wynn for a combined $61,000. Back in his room at Bill's, he added up his winnings: He was going home with $152,250 in cash in his luggage. And he wasn't done yet. There were casinos in Pennsylvania, too, where he could operate without the slightest risk of Kane knowing what he was up to—or demanding a cut up front.

After Nestor left, Kane tore into Vegas with a vengeance. Official numbers have never been released, and Kane declined to speak for this article, but the FBI would later tally Kane's winnings at more than $500,000 from eight different casinos. The Wynn, where Kane kept four nines on one Game King for days, was the biggest loser at $225,240.

Back in Pennsylvania, Nestor targeted the newly opened casino at the Meadows Racetrack in Washington County. In contrast to Kane, who played the bug with joyless, businesslike intensity, Nestor was voluble and chatty at the Meadows. He dressed smartly and, according to court documents, brought along a small entourage for company: his roommate, a retired cop named Kerry Laverde; and Patrick Loushil, a server at Red Lobster who agreed to collect some of Nestor's jackpots for him, so they wouldn't all show up on Nestor's tax bill. Nestor hammed it up every time he won, gushing excitedly to the slot workers—"I'm so excited! Here, feel my heart!"—and tipping generously.

But it all began to unravel the night Kane found himself waiting for a payout at the Silverton. The casino's head of security stood just outside the slot area. Kane paced and huffed, spun the swivel chair back and forth like a metronome, and complained to passing slot attendants. Finally, three men strode up to him. The head of security directed Kane to an alcove, handcuffed him, and escorted him away from the video poker machines.

An armed agent from the Gaming Control Board arrived soon after. He sealed the machines Kane had been playing on with orange evidence tape and collected Kane from the back room, where he'd been handcuffed to a chair. Kane's wallet and the $27,000 in his pocket were confiscated, and he was booked into the Clark County Detention Center on suspicion of theft.

After a night in jail, Kane was released. On Monday he called Nestor to warn him that the bug had been discovered. He sounded more upset than nestor had ever heard him. "Stay out of the casinos," Kane said. "Do not go back to the casinos."

Nestor's heart sank for his old friend. It was painful to imagine Kane suffering the indignity of a night in jail, mug shots, fingerprints, being treated like a common criminal. But after the call, Nestor talked himself into an alternate theory. What if there'd been no arrest? What if Kane suspected—as he must have—that Nestor was using the bug and had made up the story about the Silverton to scare Nestor into stopping, so Kane could have the exploit all to himself? By this time Nestor had been back in Pennsylvania three weeks and had already won nearly $50,000 from the Meadow's Game King.

He decided to ignore Kane's story and started planning his next trip to the Meadows.

Three days later, in Las Vegas, engineers from the Nevada Gaming Control Board's Technology Division descended on the Silverton. The forensics investigation of the Game King scam had fallen to John Lastusky, a 25-year-old clean-cut USC computer engineering graduate.

Lastusky pulled up the game history on the two machines Kane had played and reviewed the wins, then slid out the logic trays, the metal shelves housing the Game King's electronic guts, and checked the six EPROMs containing the machines' core logic, graphics, and sound routines. There was no sign of tampering. He confiscated the logic trays and packed them up for the trip back to headquarters.

Housed in an anonymous office park near the airport, the GCB's Technology Division was formed in the mid-1980s to police video gambling as it began its Nevada ascent. The division helps set the rigorous standards that gamemakers like IGT must meet to deploy machines in the Silver State. A 3,000-square-foot laboratory at the back of the office is packed end to end with slot machines in various states of undress—some powered down, some in maintenance mode, others stripped to their bare electronics, though most are configured as they would be on a gaming floor.

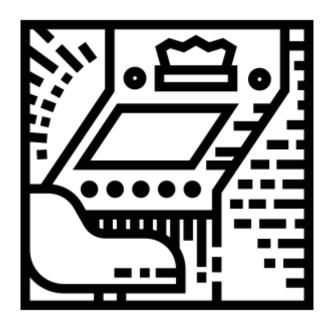

A smaller, locked-down room adjacent to the lab is more important: It houses a permanent repository of the source and executable code for every version of game software ever approved in Nevada—more than 30,000 programs in all. The code vault is at the center of the gaming board's massive software integrity operation. Every new addition is carefully examined: Is the random number generator random enough? Does the game pay out at the advertised rate? Is there logic where there shouldn't be? "We're not necessarily looking for something nefarious, but the goal is to ensure the integrity of the product," says division chief Jim Barbee.

There's a real, if mostly unrealized, danger of gaming software being backdoored. The concept was proven in 1995, when one of the GCB's own staffers, Ron Harris, went bad.

Harris modified his testing unit to covertly reprogram the EPROMs on the machines he was auditing. His new software commanded the machine to trigger a jackpot upon a particular sequence of button presses—like a Konami Code for cash. He was eventually caught, and he served two years in prison.

HOW THEY BEAT THE HOUSE

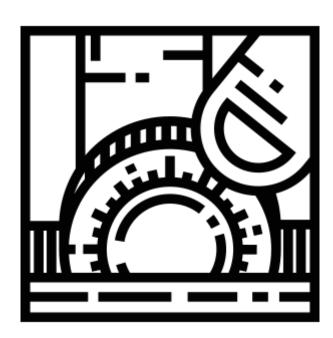

The "Double Up bug" lurking in the software of Game King video poker machines survived undetected for nearly seven years, in part because the steps to reproduce it were so complex. John Kane and Andre Nestor experimented until they could trigger it at will.

1. Locate a Game King video poker machine configured for multi-denomination play. If you're in Las Vegas, you're probably already standing next to one.

2. Flag down a slot attendant and ask them to enable the Double Up option. Say thank you and smile until they walk away.

3. Insert money or a voucher and select the lowest denomination level offered by the machine—for example, $1 per credit on a $1, $2, $5, $10 machine.

4. Choose your favorite game variant—Triple Double Bonus Poker is fun—and start playing.

5. Keep playing at the $1 level until you win a big hand. An $800 royal flush is perfect.

6. With your royal flush showing but not yet cashed out, hit the More Games button on the touchscreen and select a different game variation. Play it until you score a win.

7. Insert more money or a voucher into the machine.

8. Touch the More Games button again, and change to the maximum denomination—in this case, $10 per credit. Then return to your original $800 royal flush.

9. Press the Cash Out button. "Jackpot! $8,000" will appear on the screen and the light on the top of the machine will illuminate. Congratulations!

10. Wait for the slot attendant to show up with an IRS form W-2G ("certain gambling winnings"). Once you've signed it, they'll get the machine to spit out a jackpot ticket.

That stain on the board's integrity haunts the division to this day. But by all evidence, the division's paranoia, coupled with the game industry's self-interest, have kept video gambling code clean and mostly free of exploitable bugs. That made the Game King case an intriguing puzzle for Lastusky. Armed with the surveillance footage of Kane in action, Lastusky sat at one of the Game Kings in the lab and began experimenting. Within a few days he was able to reliably reproduce the exploit himself. He gave his findings to IGT, which rushed out a warning to its customers advising them to immediately disable the Double Up option. "Replacement programs are being expedited," the company explained.

Every Game King on the planet running a vulnerable version would need a patch. The upgrade process would be grueling. When an operating system like Windows or OS X has a security bug, customers can download the patch in a few minutes over the Internet. Slot machines aren't online. New programs are burned onto EPROMs by the manufacturer and shipped in the mail in plastic tubes.

Blind to the firestorm erupting in Vegas, Nestor spent the rest of July and most of August playing at the Meadows, until August 31, when the casino finally got suspicious and refused to pay Nestor on a four of a kind. Nestor protested but walked away, breaking into a run as he reached the parking garage.

Nestor was up more than $480,000. The Game King ride was over, but he had enough money to last him forever.

At 1:30 pm on October 6, 2009, a dozen state and local police converged on Andre Nestor's split-level condo on a quiet, tree-lined street in Swissvale. He was dozing on his living room couch when the banging started. "State police! Open up!" The battering ram hit the door seconds later, splintering the frame and admitting a flood of cops into the house.

Nestor says he started toward the stairs, his hands over his head, when he came face-to-face with a trooper in full riot gear. "Get on the floor!" yelled the trooper, leveling his AR-15 at Nestor's face. Nestor complied. The cop ratcheted the handcuffs on Nestor's wrists, yanked him to his feet, and marched him into the kitchen.

For the next two hours, Nestor watched helplessly, handcuffed to a kitchen chair, while the police ransacked his neat home. They flipped over his mattress, ripped insulation from his ceiling, rifled his PC. At about 4 pm, Nestor's roommate, Laverde, arrived home and was arrested on the spot as an accomplice to Nestor's crimes.

It was the first major gambling scandal in Pennsylvania since the state had legalized slots in 2004. The media portrayed Nestor as a real-life Danny Ocean, and prosecutors hit him with 698 felony counts, ranging from theft to criminal conspiracy. The district attorney seized every penny of Nestor's winnings and gave it back to the Meadows. Nestor and Laverde spent about 10 days in the county jail before making bail.

A defiant Nestor vowed to fight the case—no jury would convict a gambler, he was certain, for beating a slot machine at its own game. But on January 3, 2011, when it was time for jury selection, Nestor was hit with another surprise. Two FBI agents showed up and pulled him from the Washington County courthouse. The Justice Department had taken over the case. Nestor and Kane had both been charged federally in Las Vegas.

As the agents walked him to their car, Nestor stopped in front of a television camera and let loose. "I'm being arrested federally now—for winning at a slot machine!" he shouted in disbelief. "This is what they do to people! They put a machine on the floor, and if it has programming that doesn't take your money and you win on their machine, they will throw you in jail!"

The Las Vegas prosecutors charged Nestor and Kane with conspiracy and violations of the Computer Fraud and Abuse Act. Passed in 1986, the CFAA was enacted to punish hackers who remotely crack computers related to national defense or banking. But in the Internet age the government had been steadily testing the limits of the law in cases that didn't involve computer intrusion in the usual sense. Kane and Nestor, the government argued, exceeded their otherwise lawful access to the Game King when they knowingly exploited a bug. The casinos only authorized gamers to play by the rules of video poker. "To allow customers to access previously played hands of cards at will, would remove the element of chance and obviate the whole purpose of gambling," assistant US attorney for the District of Nevada Michael Chu argued in a court filing. "It would certainly be contrary to the rules of poker."

The defense attorneys pushed for dismissal of the computer hacking charge, on the grounds that anything the Game King allowed players to do through its interface was

"authorized access" by definition: The whole point of playing slots is to beat the machine, and it's up to the computer to set and enforce limits. "All these guys did is simply push a sequence of buttons that they were legally entitled to push," says Leavitt, Kane's attorney.

The pretrial motions dragged on for more than 18 months, while in the larger legal landscape, the CFAA was going under a microscope for the first time since its passage. In January 2013, coder and activist Aaron Swartz committed suicide after being charged under the same law for bulk-downloading academic articles without permission, spurring calls for reform. Three months later, the US Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals threw out computer hacking charges in a closely watched case against David Nosal, a former executive at a corporate recruiting firm who persuaded three employees to leak him information from the firm's lead database. The Ninth Circuit found that pilfering contacts doesn't become computer hacking just because the data came from a computer instead of a copy machine.

Seeing parallels to the Game King prosecution, the judge overseeing Kane and Nestor's case ordered the government to justify the hacking charge. The prosecutors didn't even try, opting instead to drop the charge—leaving only an ill-fitting "conspiracy to commit wire fraud" count remaining.

Prosecutors had a weak hand, and they knew it. As a December 3, 2013, trial date approached, the Feds made Kane and Nestor separate but identical offers: The first one to agree to testify against the other would walk away with five years of probation and no jail time.

The old gambling buddies had one more game to play together. It was the Prisoner's Dilemma. Without speaking, they both arrived at the optimal strategy: They refused the offer. A few months later, the Justice Department dropped the last of the charges, and they were free.

Kane and Nestor haven't spoken since 2009. After his Silverton arrest, Kane began recording classical music in his house and uploading the videos to a YouTube channel. Last March, after the federal case was dropped, he sent a CD of some of his performances to his high school piano teacher. "I'm essentially now retired from a career in business, have remained single, leading a quiet suburban life," he wrote.

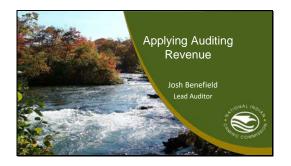

Nestor's greatest regret is that he let the Game King bug come between him and Kane. "I didn't want it to go that far," he says. "I thought he and I were friends long enough that these kinds of issues didn't need to happen." He claims he always intended to pay Kane his cut from the secret jackpots. Now he can't. His roommate, Laverde, signed over Nestor's money in exchange for avoiding a trial of his own. (There are no court filings to suggest that Kane's winnings were seized.) Nestor says the Meadows still has his winnings, and the IRS is chasing him for $239,861.04 in back taxes, interest, and penalties—money he doesn't have.

If there's one silver lining, it's that Nestor has been banned from Pennsylvania casinos. He still gambles occasionally in neighboring states, but his more pressing addiction right now is Candy Crush, which he plays on a cheap Android tablet. He cleared 515 levels in two months, using a trick he found on the Internet to get extra lives without paying.

Casino company analyst pleads guilty in $860,000 slot scheme

RJ reviewjournal.com/news/crime-courts/casino-company-analyst-pleads-guilty-860000-slot-scheme

By Jeff German LAS VEGAS REVIEW-JOURNAL

May 10, 2012 - 2:00am

As an analyst for the state's largest casino company, Tony Ahn was a trusted employee who had access to valuable player's club information.

But federal court documents show that Ahn, 27, betrayed that trust in 2009, hatching an elaborate slot machine scheme from within the company, then known as MGM Mirage, to unlawfully win $863,895.

Ahn used his company position to identify regular customers with unused free play points, transferred the points to counterfeit players club cards and recruited people to gamble with the cards at the company's casinos along the Strip, the court documents allege.

MGM Mirage and law enforcement authorities eventually got wise to the scheme, even tracking the group's interactions on Facebook.

This week, Ahn, who lost his job amid the cheating scandal, pleaded guilty in federal court to spearheading the conspiracy.

Free play points earned by thousands of MGM Mirage club members, many of whom lived outside Nevada, were stolen between July 2009 and July 2010, the court documents allege.

The company under its new name, MGM Resorts International, owns 16 casinos in Nevada, including 10 on the Strip.

Three other indicted members of Ahn's ring, Joseph Ramirez, David Evans and David Pecor, have pleaded guilty and are waiting to be sentenced. Ahn's brother, Danny, is to be charged and enter a guilty plea next week.

Ahn pleaded guilty on Monday before U.S. District Judge James Mahan to three charges: trafficking in, production and use of counterfeit access devices; fraudulent transactions with access devices; and conspiracy to commit access device fraud.

Ahn, who is free on his own recognizance, declined comment after entering his plea. He faces an Aug. 6 sentencing.

According to his agreement with prosecutors, Ahn admitted stealing customer data from MGM Mirage in the summer of 2009. That data included the free play points, with personal identification numbers and card numbers needed to access the points.

Alan Feldman, senior vice president of public affairs for MGM Resorts International, said the company's internal Fraud Control Group uncovered the scheme and reported it to Nevada gaming regulators and the FBI.

"They were monitoring his activities for several months in conjunction with law enforcement," he said. "They pieced this case together very carefully."

Feldman said information was obtained during the investigation by "keeping very close watch" over the social media posts of the group members.

"As people were being questioned, they claimed no knowledge of one another, yet their posts showed otherwise," Feldman said.

Ahn had recruited Ramirez and Evans to the scheme, giving them counterfeit players club cards encoded with the stolen customer data and instructing them to pose as slot machine customers, Ahn's plea agreement states.

Later, Ahn provided Ramirez and Evans with a computer, card encoder and blank players club cards and taught them how to encode the stolen customer data onto the cards.

Pecor and Danny Ahn also were brought into the scheme, court documents allege. Pecor was given counterfeit players club cards to use, and Ahn became a middleman for his brother, providing Ramirez and Evans with stolen customer data while collecting the brothers' share of the slot machine winnings.

In March 2010, state authorities arrested one of the unindicted members of the group for playing with counterfeit players club cards, the documents say.

Shortly after the arrest, Ahn and the group took measures to cover their tracks.

Ramirez and Evans buried the computer, card encoder, a flash drive and blank players club cards in the desert, according to the court documents.

But months after the February 2011 indictment of Ahn and his co-defendants, FBI agents, with help from Ramirez and Evans, dug up the items and impounded them as evidence, sources said.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Michael Chu said in court that the defendants have agreed to pay back the $863,895 stolen from the casinos in the scam.

They also have agreed to forfeit more than $30,000 in cash seized by FBI agents, with a pickup, a motorcycle, several weapons, a laptop computer and several cellphones.

Key Points:

- Cover the basics of auditing revenue
- Discuss controls
- Review procedure documentation
- Explore preparation & tracking of exception notices

Key Points:

Auditing Revenue largely consists of performing the following processes:

- Verify
- Review
- Compare
- Reconcile

Key Points:

Verification procedures usually involve verifying balances, transactions, and proper controls.

Consider the most effective method(s)

Determine what documents you will need, whom you may need to speak with, and if any observations will need to be performed Document performance of verifications

Key Points:

Reviews make up the majority of auditing revenue procedures Reviews mean more than just looking at a number or a report Reviews require an evaluation of the information examined Scheduling reviews is critical: Daily, monthly, quarterly, annual

Key Points:

Analyzing data

Uses multiple sources of information

Compare source documentation to summary reports or posted information

Investigations are necessary when variances are identified May require creation of reconciliation forms to document testing and variances

Key Points:

Are there other controls (outside of auditing revenue) in which auditing revenue procedures may be useful?

Key Points:

Are there other controls (outside of auditing revenue) in which auditing revenue procedures may be useful?

Bingo

For manual payment of a voucher of $500 or more, require a supervisory employee to verify the validity of the voucher prior to payment

Pull Tabs

At least two agents must document and verify all prize payouts above $600, or lower threshold as authorized by management and approved by the TGRA

Drop and Count

•Procedures must be implemented to ensure that any corrections to the count documentation are permanent and identifiable, and that the original, corrected information remains legible.

Corrections must be verified by two count team agents.

Cage and Vault

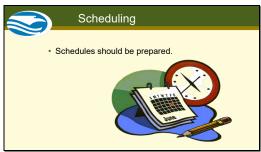

■The cage and vault inventories (including coin rooms) must be counted independently by at least two agents, attested to by signature, and recorded in ink or other permanent form at the end of each shift during which the activity took place.

Key Points:

The operation must establish, as approved by the TGRA, the threshold level at which a variance must be reviewed to determine the cause. Any such review must be documented

Key Points:

How can a schedule help manage the auditing revenue process?

Ensure required auditing revenue procedures are performed on a timely basis Keeps infrequently performed procedures top-of-mind

Ensure adequate resources are available for auditing revenue procedures

Useful for keeping track of infrequent reviews, special projects, and follow-up reviews

Key Points:

Why is proper documentation of auditing revenue procedures important?

Performance of auditing revenue procedures should be clearly documented

- Checkmarks, initials or signatures and dates on reports reviewed
- Creating documents showing performance of reconciliations and other documented testing procedures
- Auditing Revenue checklists

Key Points:

Daily/Monthly/Quarterly/Annual checklist(s)

Checklists should provide sufficient detail to clearly identify auditing revenue procedures

Checklists should be dated and initialed by the revenue auditor(s) to document accountability for the performance of the auditing revenue procedures

Key Points:

Exception notices should include a documented summary of the non-compliance identified, include:

- Date of noncompliance
- Responsible department (employee if available)
- Department Management (if applicable)
- Date notice is issued
- Response
- Deadline/due date for response

Key Points:

- An 'Exception Notice' Log is a useful tool
- Tracks instances of non-compliance
- Helps identify date of exceptions, in case documentation for the day needs to be reviewed at a later time
- Tracks receipt of responses from operational staff and/or management
- Helps plan follow-up, if needed
- Can be used to track patterns of non-compliance
- May identify areas where additional training is needed

IGRA Section 2710(F)

What is in the FBI MOU?

MEMORANDUM OF UNDERSTANDING REGARDING THE DISSEMINATION OF CRIMINAL HISTORY RECORD INFORMATION BY THE NATIONAL INDIAN GAMING COMMISSION

In order to facilitate the undersigned tribe (Tribe) in determining the suitability of individuals who have applied for positions as key employees or primary management officials in its gaming operation(s), the National Indian Gaming Commission (NIGC) will be obtaining criminal history record information (CHRI) from the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) on these individuals and disseminating such information to the Tribe.

This memorandum sets forth the following conditions under which the NIGC will disseminate the CHRI to the Tribe:

- 1. Prior to taking an applicant's fingerprints, the Tribe agrees to provide the applicant with a written notification that informs the applicant that: (i) his or her fingerprints will be used to check the criminal history records maintained by the FBI; (ii) he or she has the opportunity to complete or challenge the accuracy of the information contained in the FBI identification record; (iii) the procedures for obtaining a copy of his or her FBI criminal history record are set forth at 28 CFR §§ 16.30 16.33, or by visiting the FBI's website at http://www.fbi.gov/about-us/cjis/background-checks; and (iv) the procedure for obtaining a change, correction, or updating an FBI identification record are set forth at 28 CFR § 16.34. The Tribe understands that if it does not provide the applicant with this written notification, the NIGC will not disseminate the CHRI to the Tribe.
- 2. The Tribe understands that the FBI has retained the right to approve the dissemination of the CHRI and may, at some future date, prohibit the NIGC from disseminating CHRI. The Tribe further understands that the NIGC will not release any CHRI without first having received all required prior approvals from the FBI and will not release any CHRI when prohibited from doing so by the FBI. The Tribe also understands that the FBI may impose additional restrictions on the dissemination and use of the CHRI (in addition to those imposed by the NIGC), and that the Tribe will be subject to all such additional restrictions.
- 3. The Tribe agrees that any CHRI disseminated by the NIGC may be used by the Tribe solely for the purpose of determining a particular applicant's suitability for employment in the Tribe's gaming operation(s).
- 4. The Tribe understands that NIGC disseminations will only contain the CHRI on a particular applicant and will not contain any NIGC recommendations or conclusions. However, the NIGC reserves the right to furnish (to the Tribe) summary memoranda containing the results of the CHRI.
- 5. The Tribe agrees that any and all CHRI with which it is provided shall be afforded proper security. The Tribe shall ensure that access to all CHRI disseminated by the NIGC, including all summary memoranda, is restricted to tribal personnel directly involved in licensing deliberations. The Tribe agrees to maintain records of the identities of all persons having access to the CHRI and such records shall be furnished to the NIGC upon request.
- 6. The Tribe agrees that, except in connection with proceedings related to the Tribe's licensing determinations for its gaming employees, neither the CHRI nor any summary memoranda disseminated by the NIGC shall be reproduced, distributed, or introduced in a court of law or administrative hearing, without the NIGC's prior written consent.
- 7. The NIGC agrees to promptly notify tribal authorities in the event that the NIGC determines that it is necessary to discontinue disseminating CHRI to the Tribe (either in whole or in part) due to the Tribe's failure to comply with the conditions set forth in this memorandum.

The Tribe acknowledges and consents to the above-stated conditions on this	day of,

Major issues or behaviors:

- Patterns of repeat criminal history
- Other than honorable military discharge
- Drug Manufacturing
- Armed Robbery
- Embezzlement
- Forgery
- Violent behavior rape, arson, use of firearm, child abuse etc.

Moderate issues or behaviors:

- Drug related offences
- Petty theft
- Harassment
- Employment related misconduct
- Bogus Check

Minor issues or behaviors:

- Minor alcohol offences
- Traffic violations
- One-time bad check
- Disturbing the peace

How can you use a credit in your background investigation?

- Determine if the applicant has repeated bankruptcies. If an applicant files for bankruptcy every 7 years, this could be a pattern of financial issues. The applicant may have poor financial skills, which may affect the operations finances. Further evaluation should be conducted.
- Determine if the applicant's monthly debt payments exceed their anticipated income. If the applicant is applying for a cash handling position and they have significant debt, this could increase the risk of theft or embezzlement.

Credit history helps determine if the applicant is living beyond their means. If an applicant does not have the money to support their current lifestyle, you may be setting yourself up for employee theft.

If the TGRA uses credit reports to evaluate the applicant's eligibility for a license, include a notice required under the FAIR CREDIT REPORTING ACT 15 USC § 1681.

Do not forget to consider dishonest behavior. This includes:

False statements
Forged documents
Past employment issues

What else should I do during my background investigation?

NOTES

Verify three references - 25 CFR § 556.4 (a) (3) - must be three! If you only ask for three references on the application, consider asking for five in case you cannot get ahold of a reference. In addition, you can ask a reference for another reference.

Check other Tribal Gaming Licenses - 25 CFR § 556.4 (a)(7)- If a gaming commission has not responded after several attempts to verify licensing, contact your NIGC Compliance Officer for assistance. Do not wait until your submission is late to the NIGC.

Verify education - recommended - if the Casino position requires a high school diploma or college degree, verify the education requirement with the school. There are websites in which people can obtain a fake diploma or degree for a small fee.

Verify work history - 25 CFR § 556.4 (a) (2) - Call all employers during the past 5 years. Although they may not disclose details, you will at least know the applicant worked at that business. If the business is no longer open, have the applicant, give you the name and number for a supervisor or fellow employee to verify employment. In addition, you can use W-2 forms to verify dates of employment. If your Commission does not have the budget to verify work numbers, please document any information you have in the Investigative report, which we will discuss later in the course.

Obtain certified court documents - recommended - do not allow applicant to provide you with free online site printouts. Get full, certified copies of all court documents.

Collect valid ID's - recommended - The following is from the IRS website:

NOTES

After conducting an investigation, the TGRA will make a determination based on:

- Prior activities:
- Criminal record, if any;
- Reputation, habits and associations.

§ 556.5 Tribal eligibility determination.

A tribe shall conduct an investigation sufficient to make an eligibility determination.

- (a) To make a finding concerning the eligibility of a key employee or primary management official for granting of a gaming license, an authorized tribal official shall review a person's:
 - (1) Prior activities;
 - (2) Criminal record, if any; and
 - (3) Reputation, habits and associations.
- (b) If the authorized tribal official, in applying the standards adopted in a tribal ordinance, determines that licensing of the person poses a threat to the public interest or to the effective regulation of gaming, or creates or enhances the dangers of unsuitable, unfair, or illegal practices and methods and activities in the conduct of gaming, an authorizing tribal official shall not license that person in a key employee or primary management official position.

Eligibility can only be determined after the entire background is completed.

The licensing agent will take into consideration all facts and information found during the background to determine if the applicant is prohibited from or eligible to hold a gaming license. I.e. Honesty, timeliness in providing required documents, etc.

Depending on the position held by the applicant and negative information found in the background, and the circumstance surrounding the negative information, your Gaming Commission may choose to issue the applicant a conditional license or deny the license.

This is demonstrated by any applicant with a number in the "Count" column. Note Anderson and Deer have 127 and 99 elapsed days. To remedy this, the TGRA should submit an NOR, Not Licensed by the Tribe or a Renewal Notice.

See Bulletin # 2014-02 located at www.nigc.gov/Reading Room/Bulletins.aspx

- Finger Prints and FBI CHRI results.
- Documents to support the investigative steps taken including employer / reference questionnaire, credit report, copy of driver's license, social security card, and/or birth certificate.

Copy of NIGC no objection letter (recommended). Copy of License Issued notice to NIGC (recommended).

Recording Legible Fingerprints

Introduction to Recording Legible Fingerprints

The FBI's Integrated Automated Fingerprint Identification System (IAFIS) is the largest biometric database of criminals in the world. Clear, legible fingerprints form the foundation of the Fingerprint Master File, which continues to grow by approximately 13,000 records each day. Agencies submitting fingerprints to the FBI should be aware of the proper procedures for recording fingerprints. The following information will assist agencies in obtaining fingerprints that meet FBI standards.

Fingerprint Impression Types

Type 4

• Rolled impressions are the ten individually-taken fingerprint images rolled from nail to nail. The plain impressions are used to verify the sequence and accuracy of the rolled impressions.

Type 14

• Identification flat impressions are taken simultaneously without rolling. These are referred to as plain, slap, or flat impressions. The individual's right and left four fingers should be captured first, followed by the two thumbs (4-4-2 method). Instituting this finger capture method ensures the highest level of fingerprint sequence accuracy.

Basic Fingerprint Equipment

Fingerprints can be recorded utilizing the following methods:

- Standard Fingerprint Card (e.g., FD-249 and FD-258)—Use ink to record fingerprint images on standard fingerprint cards.
- Live Scan—Fingerprint images can be submitted electronically using a live scan device. Electronic fingerprinting equipment should be properly maintained at all times. For a list of certified devices, please refer to the FBI Certified Products List at www.fbibiospecs.org.

Fingerprinting Process

• The recommended height for recording legible fingerprints is approximately 39 inches from the floor. This allows the forearm of an average adult to be parallel with the floor. This is the recommended position to record fingerprints.

- Soap and water are preferred; however, rubbing alcohol may be substituted.
- o If hands are moist, wipe each finger with rubbing alcohol. If hands are dry or flaky use a small amount of hand lotion and wipe off any residue.
- If capturing fingerprints electronically, ensure the live scan fingerprint device is properly calibrated and the platen is free of dust, dirt, and any residual fingerprint images.
- The individual's hands should be cleaned prior to printing:
- Instruct the individual to look away from the fingerprint device, not to assist in the fingerprint process, and to relax. Grasp the individual's right hand at the base of the thumb with your right hand. Cup your hand over the individual's fingers, tucking under those fingers not being printed. Guide the finger being printed with your left hand.
- If using the ink and paper method, roll the finger on the inking plate or pad so the entire fingerprint pattern area is evenly covered with ink. The ink should cover from one edge of the nail to the other and from the crease of the first joint to the tip of the finger. Using the correct amount of ink is vital.
- When taking the rolled impression, the side of the finger bulb is placed upon the card or platen. The finger is then rolled to the other side until it faces the opposite direction. Care should be exercised so the bulb of each finger, from tip to below the first joint, is rolled evenly. Generally, the weight of the finger is the maximum pressure needed to clearly record a fingerprint. In order to take advantage of the natural movement of the forearm, the hand should be rotated from the more difficult position to the easiest position. This requires the thumbs be rolled toward and the fingers away from the center of the individual's body. Roll each finger from nail to nail in the appropriate space, taking care to lift each finger up after rolling to avoid smudging.
- When using the ink and paper method and a rolled impression is not acceptable, you may use an adhesive retab to cover the fingerprint in its space. (Only two retabs can be applied to each fingerprint block.) For live scan, the image should be deleted and retaken.
- For a Type-4, plain impressions are typically printed last. The technician simultaneously presses the individual's four fingers (of the right hand), keeping the fingers together on the surface of the card or live scan device (at a 45-degree angle) to capture all four fingers in the allotted space. Repeat this process for the left hand and then print both thumbs. Type-14 capture protocol requires the technician to simultaneously press the individual's four fingers on the surface of the live scan device at a 90-degree vertical angle. Care should be taken to capture all fingers in the allotted space. Repeat this process for the left hand and then print both thumbs simultaneously (4-4-2 method). Capturing all fingers and thumbs in a vertical position improves finger segmentation software accuracy.

• Complete all required textual information. It is important to enter the appropriate data in all fields when known.

Special Circumstances

Deformed or missing fingers:

If the finger is deformed, every attempt should be made to record the fingerprint in both the rolled and plain impression blocks. A postmortem kit, which is more commonly known as a spoon, can be utilized to assist in recording these images. If unable to record the image, simply place a notation in the fingerprint block (e.g., deformed, webbed) or electronically apply the Unable to Print (UP) code in data field 2.084.

Missing fingers are fingers physically present but cannot be recorded at the time of capture due to injury. Each missing finger should be designated via a notation in the fingerprint block (e.g., bandaged, injured, crippled, paralyzed) or electronically apply the UP code in data field 2.084.

Fully amputated fingers:

An amputated finger occurs when the finger's first joint is no longer physically present. Amputated fingers should be designated via a notation in the fingerprint block (e.g., amp, missing at birth, severed) or electronically apply the Amputated (XX) code in data field 2.084.

Tip-amputated fingers:

If a portion of the first joint is present, record the available fingerprint pattern area in both the rolled and plain impression blocks.

Extra fingers:

When fingerprinting an individual with an extra finger, record only the thumb and the next four fingers. Do not record the extra finger as either a rolled or plain impression.

Scarred fingers:

Record scarred fingers in both the rolled and plain impressions without a notation.

Worn fingerprints:

An individual, by the nature of their work or age, may have very thin or worn ridges in the pattern area. Apply light pressure and use very little ink to record these types of fingerprint impressions. A technique known as "milking the finger" can be used to raise the fingerprint ridges prior to printing. This technique involves applying pressure or rubbing the fingers in a downward motion from palm to fingertip.

NATIONAL INDIAN GAMING COMMISSION

BULLETIN

No. 93-2 June 22, 1993

Subject: Procedures for Processing Fingerprint Cards

The National Indian Gaming Commission (NIGC) is currently implementing procedures to process fingerprint cards submitted by tribes as part of their employee background investigations. This bulletin is intended to provide you with information concerning the steps to be followed to ensure the prompt processing of all submitted fingerprint cards.

Under the NIGC's ordinance regulations, prior to the issuance of a license, a tribe is required to perform a fingerprint check, through the FBI records system, as part of the background investigation on each individual who has applied for a position as a key employee or primary management official in its gaming operation[s]. The information obtained as a result of this fingerprint check will assist the tribe in determining the applicant's suitability for employment.

The FBI has recently issued a policy statement concerning access to criminal history record information (CHRI) by the NIGC, state agencies and tribal governments. A copy of this policy statement is enclosed for your information. As you will note, under this policy the NIGC is authorized to process fingerprint cards and issue copies of the reports of the fingerprint checks directly to the requesting tribes. Because of the highly sensitive nature of the reports, the FBI has required the NIGC to take steps to ensure that there is no improper dissemination of CHRI, that the information is used only for authorized purposes, and that the CHRI is securely maintained.

In order to ensure compliance with these FBI requirements, it is necessary for each tribe receiving CHRI to execute the enclosed Memorandum of Understanding (MOU). The MOU also places certain restrictions on the use of CHRI in administrative and judicial proceedings, reserves NIGC's right to furnish the tribe CHRI in the form of summary memoranda, restricts the availability of NIGC employees to testify relative to CHRI, reserves NIGC's right to discontinue providing CHRI where a tribe has failed to comply with the terms of the MOU, and acknowledges the FBI's right to impose additional restrictions on the release of CHRI.

FBI policy also authorizes CHRI access by state regulatory agencies and tribal governments under certain specified conditions (see Policy Statement at pages 4-5). Tribes should determine if the conditions exist which would permit them to process fingerprint cards directly or through a state agency. Where the qualifying conditions have been met, the tribe may elect to use such agencies to process its fingerprint cards. It should be noted, however, that under current FBI policy, such requests will not routinely be processed through Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) law enforcement offices. The language contained in the Preamble to the NIGC's final ordinance regulations indicating that the BIA is available for such purposes is inaccurate and should be disregarded. BIA law enforcement offices may, however, continue to take the fingerprints of applicants for key employee and primary management official positions and forward the subject fingerprint cards to the NIGC for processing.

Set forth below are the steps to be followed whenever a tribe elects to use the NIGC to process the fingerprints cards of applicants for employment in its gaming operations:

- 1. A duly authorized official of the tribe should execute the enclosed MOU and return it to the NIGC at the earliest possible date. No copies of criminal history reports will be forwarded to a tribe until the NIGC has received a properly executed MOU.
- 2. The tribe should notify the NIGC which law enforcement agency/office(s) will be taking the fingerprints for the tribe and designate a contact person at the identified agency/office(s). In addition, the tribe should indicate the number of cards which the NIGC should send to this agency/office making allowances for lost or damaged cards. The forwarded cards will reflect the Originating Agency Identifier (ORI) number assigned to the NIGC by the FBI.
- 3. The tribe should provide NIGC with a list of individuals whose fingerprint cards the NIGC will be receiving from the law enforcement agency/office and a check to the National Indian Gaming Commission to cover the cost of processing those cards (number of cards X $35.00). The list should also contain the social security number and date of birth of each listed individual and the name of the law enforcement agency/office taking the fingerprints. The $35.00 per card charge for processing consists of a $17.00 fee charged by the FBI and $18.00 to cover NIGC's costs, including personnel, postage and telephone.
- 4. Once fingerprints have been taken, the agency taking the prints should forward the completed cards directly to the NIGC. The NIGC will process only those cards received directly from a law enforcement agency.
- 5. Once the NIGC receives: 1) the completed fingerprint card; 2) the required list of the individuals whose fingerprint cards the NIGC will be receiving and 3) a check to cover costs, it will forward the fingerprint cards to the FBI for processing. The FBI is currently averaging 21 working days to process a fingerprint card.

- 6. Upon completion of the fingerprint check, the FBI will forward a report of the findings to the NIGC. Subject to compliance with the conditions set forth in the enclosed Memorandum of Understanding (MOU), NIGC will forward a copy of this report to the submitting tribe to be used in determining of the suitability of the applicant for employment in the tribe's gaming operation.
- 7. The NIGC will retain the original reports and the processed fingerprint cards and will incorporate them into the Indian Gaming Individual Records System. This system will be subject to the Commission's Privacy Act Procedures. see 25 CFR Sections 515.1-12 (58 FR 5814-5818, January 22, 1993).

NIGC regulations require a tribe to perform a background check on applicants for key employee or management official positions following approval of a tribal ordinance by the Chairman. In order to facilitate the prompt distribution of CHRI, however, the NIGC will process fingerprint card submissions which meet the requirements of Paragraph 5 prior the approval of a gaming ordinance.

It is important to note, however, that until such time a tribe's gaming ordinance has been approved by the Chairman, the procedures for forwarding employee applications and investigative reports set forth in Sections 558.3 and 558.4 cannot be initiated by the tribe and the time periods contained in those provisions do not begin to run. It should be further noted that if the tribe is conducting a background investigation consistent with the requirements of Part 556, the CHRI constitutes only one of a number of sources of information which the tribe must consider in making eligibility determinations for employment in its gaming operation.

These procedures are effective immediately.

For additional information contact Fingerprint Processing at (202) 632-7003.

Providing your fingerprints and associated information is voluntary; however, failure to do so may affect completion or approval of your application.

Principal Purpose: Certain determinations, such as employment, licensing, and security clearances, may be predicated on fingerprint-based background checks. Your fingerprints and associated information/biometrics may be provided to the employing, investigating, or otherwise responsible agency, and/or the FBI for the purpose of comparing your fingerprints to other fingerprints in the FBI's Next Generation Identification (NGI) system or its successor systems (including civil, criminal, and latent fingerprint repositories) or other available records of the employing, investigating, or otherwise responsible agency. The FBI may retain your fingerprints and associated information/biometrics in NGI after the completion of this application and, while retained, your fingerprints may continue to be compared against other fingerprints submitted to or retained by NGI.

Routine Uses: During the processing of this application and for as long thereafter as your fingerprints and associated information/biometrics are retained in NGI, your information may be disclosed pursuant to your consent, and may be disclosed without your consent as permitted by the Privacy Act of 1974 and all applicable Routine Uses as may be published at any time in the Federal Register, including the Routine Uses for the NGI system and the FBI's Blanket Routine Uses. Routine uses include, but are not limited to, disclosures to: employing, governmental or authorized non-governmental agencies responsible for employment, contracting, licensing, security clearances, and other suitability determinations; local, state, tribal, or federal law enforcement agencies; criminal justice agencies; and agencies responsible for national security or public safety.

As of 03/30/2018

NONCRIMINAL JUSTICE APPLICANT'S PRIVACY RIGHTS

As an applicant who is the subject of a national fingerprint-based criminal history record check for a noncriminal justice purpose (such as an application for employment or a license, an immigration or naturalization matter, security clearance, or adoption), you have certain rights which are discussed below.

- You must be provided written notification¹ that your fingerprints will be used to check the criminal history records of the FBI.
- You must be provided, and acknowledge receipt of, an adequate Privacy Act Statement when you submit your fingerprints and associated personal information. This Privacy Act Statement should explain the authority for collecting your information and how your information will be used, retained, and shared.²
- If you have a criminal history record, the officials making a determination of your suitability for the employment, license, or other benefit must provide you the opportunity to complete or challenge the accuracy of the information in the record.
- The officials must advise you that the procedures for obtaining a change, correction, or update of your criminal history record are set forth at Title 28, Code of Federal Regulations (CFR), Section 16.34.
- If you have a criminal history record, you should be afforded a reasonable amount of time to correct or complete the record (or decline to do so) before the officials deny you the employment, license, or other benefit based on information in the criminal history record.³

You have the right to expect that officials receiving the results of the criminal history record check will use it only for authorized purposes and will not retain or disseminate it in violation of federal statute, regulation or executive order, or rule, procedure or standard established by the National Crime Prevention and Privacy Compact Council.⁴

If agency policy permits, the officials may provide you with a copy of your FBI criminal history record for review and possible challenge. If agency policy does not permit it to provide you a copy of the record, you may obtain a copy of the record by submitting fingerprints and a fee to the FBI. Information regarding this process may be obtained at https://www.fbi.gov/services/cjis/identity-history-summary-checks.

If you decide to challenge the accuracy or completeness of your FBI criminal history record, you should send your challenge to the agency that contributed the questioned information to the FBI. Alternatively, you may send your challenge directly to the FBI. The FBI will then forward your challenge to the agency that contributed the questioned information and request the agency to verify or correct the challenged entry. Upon receipt of an official communication from that agency, the FBI will make any necessary changes/corrections to your record in accordance with the information supplied by that agency. (See 28 CFR 16.30 through 16.34.)

KEY POINTS

KEY POINTS

KEY POINTS

Items with asterisks are lesser or different standards for small and/or charitable operations. The background and licensing requirements apply to key employees and primary management officials, both of which are defined by function, not by employment status.

KEY POINTS

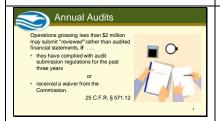

KEY POINTS

* Tribe can choose to give the 60% of net revenues back to the charity as a permissible use of gaming revenue. An arm of the Tribe— (Pow Wow Committee) may own some and they are considered tribally owned. The others, such as church and community service groups, fall under the individually owned requirements.

KEY POINTS

Any amendments to the tribal gaming ordinance must also be approved by the Chair of the NIGC.

KEY POINTS

When requesting a waiver to submit a review, a tribe should submit information that will allow the Commission to make an informed decision, including, but not limited to, a cost comparison of an audit versus a review, prior good faith efforts to regulate the entity, any compliance issues, the level of risk for misappropriation of revenues, etc.

OGC-105 Small and Charitable Gaming Participant Guide

KEY POINTS

Merriam-Webster's Dictionary: "occasional" - encountered, occurring, appearing, or taken at irregular or infrequent intervals

KEY POINTS

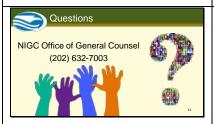

NOTES: Alternative procedures must:

- Protect the integrity of the games offered;
- Safeguard the assets used in connection with the operation; and
- Create, prepare, and maintain records in accordance with GAAP

KEY POINTS

Note: there is NO exemption for small gaming operations, but it is really on the vendor/manufacturer to satisfy the machines they are selling/leasing, not on the tribe or operation.

READ THIS SCENARIO - The Tribe offers heating assistance during the winter months. It is an approved program through tribal council resolution #445-A. To apply, a tribal member must complete an application, submit it to the tribal welfare department, and wait for approval.

In December near the holidays the Tribe is often closed to observe holidays. The CEO at the casino receives a call from the Tribal Chairperson who provides verbally authorization to use the casino credit card to purchase a tank of propane gas for a member whose home is freezing. In addition, the Chairman requested that a $200.00 in cash be issued to the tribal member so they may put gas in their vehicle.

KEY POINTS

READ THIS SCENARIO -The Tribe has an approved RAP plan by DOI. The RAP authorizes 50% of net gaming revenues to be paid by the Tribe to all eligible tribal members on a quarterly basis for per capita payments, 50% is to operate the Tribal government.

At a December Tribal Membership meeting the Tribal Chair announces that the Tribe is going to give each tribal member a $500.00 Christmas bonus and a ham. The Chair contacts the casino CEO and tells him that the Tribal Member Christmas bonuses will be issued from the Casino Cage as they were approved in the Casino budget; line item "Sponsorships/Donations Account" and the hams can be purchased by the casino restaurant since they get a discount on food purchases. The CEO provides a membership list to the casino accounting department and requests that casino checks are issued to each member as he would rather issue a check than cash. He also requests that the restaurant manager order a 1000 hams. Casino accounting recognize both expenses as a deduction from the Casino's "Sponsorships/Donations Account" since it has already been approved by Tribal Council according to policy.

CMP-111 Compliance Roles and Responsibilities Scenario Activity

Instructions: Read over these scenarios and identify procedures or policies within the Model Gaming Ordinance (or their own) to minimize the conflicts.

Licensing Scenario:

Tribal Elections are coming up and one of the elected officials comes to you the licensing agent and asks to see the background check of an employee that is running against them.

Enforcement/Monitoring Scenario:

As a member of the TGRA you receive information that a consultant hired by the operations dept. has been working on site for several months. The consultant does not have a gaming license, yet he/she appears to be supervising, training, and even terminating employees.

Audit Scenario:

It is time for the annual audit. Management praises their internal auditors and decides it would be a waste of tribal money to pay an outside firm to conduct an annual audit so they propose having the tribe use the annual audit that their internal auditors have already done which contains no findings.

Removal of a Commissioner Scenario:

The tribal elections are over and the new chairperson feels that he would be a better regulator than the current commissioner, so he terminates the commissioner 1 year early and appoints himself as the new tribal gaming commissioner.

Bulletin No. 2018-1

Date: January 10, 2018

Subject: Revised Model Gaming Ordinance

This Bulletin provides guidance for tribal governments on the development and updating of a tribal gaming ordinance. It revises and supersedes the guidance previously provided and published by the NIGC in Bulletin No. 2014-2 (May 5, 2014), Bulletin 05-05 (August 24, 2005) and Bulletin 93-1 (June 10, 1993). The Commission offers this revised Model Gaming Ordinance ("Model Ordinance") to assist tribes with meeting the ordinance requirements of IGRA and the NIGC's regulations, and with crafting effective ordinances that address each tribe's unique regulatory needs.

The Model Ordinance not only contains provisions that are required by IGRA and NIGC regulations, but also provisions that are recommended but are not required. Many section and provisions of this Model Ordinance were taken from a variety of tribal gaming ordinances so that tribes could benefit from the collective knowledge and experience of the more than 250 gaming tribes. Some sections of the Model Ordinance present different options so that tribes may adopt and use language and provisions that will work best for them.

Explanatory footnotes and matters that appear in italics in the text of the Model Ordinance are for reference only and should not be included in a tribe's gaming ordinance. Shaded areas are included for a tribe to insert its specific information.

In addition to the revised Model Ordinance, the NIGC is also posting the checklist used by the Office of General Counsel when performing the review of an ordinance. The checklist includes all the provisions required by IGRA and the NIGC's regulations.

For any questions about the revised Model Ordinance or the checklist, please contact the Office of General Counsel at (202) 632-7003.

¹⁰ This provision is recommended, but not required by IGRA or the NIGC's regulations. Usually a tribal gaming commission is the entity that acts on behalf of a tribe to regulate its gaming operation. If a tribe opts to establish a gaming commission, it may wish to include more details in this section, such as how many commissioners should be enrolled tribal members; the length of their appointments; any additional restrictions on commissioners' activities, relationships and holdings; how often written reports will be required of the commission; and how complaints will be processed by the commission.

The Commission shall have authority to take enforcement actions, including suspension or revocation of an individual gaming license, when appropriate.

C. Commissioner positions shall be filled in the following manner:

Through appointment by the [Tribe's general voting body] pursuant to an election.

OR

Through appointment by the [Tribal governing body].

OR

[Insert the Tribe's chosen method].

Terms of office for Commissioners shall be as follows: the Chair shall serve an initial term of one (1) year, with subsequent Chairs serving 3-year terms; and the Vice-Chair and Commissioner(s) shall serve an initial term of two (2) years, with subsequent Vice-Chairs and Commissioners serving 3-year terms.

- H. Nominees for Commissioner positions must satisfy the eligibility standards set forth for primary management officials and key employees found in Section 21 of this ordinance. All requisite background investigations shall be performed under the direction of [office or entity that will conduct the background investigations].

Virtual Server - Server that is usually located offsite and its resources are shared by multiple users who each have control over it. It means converting one physical server into multiple virtual machines that can each run their own operating system.

Cloud Based Computing- Delivery of computing service such as servers, storage, databases, networking, software, analytics, intelligence and more over the Internet instead of within local networked computers.

As technology continues to evolve this is the direction the industry is moving towards.

Online Accounting System:

- Streamlines frequent tasks
- Simplifies audits & work orders
- Machine management

Also Known as:

- CMS
- Back-end System
- Vendor Specific Software name

KEY POINTS

Smart Interface Board (SMIB) -

Converts the authentication protocol used by the EGM (typically-SAS, G2S) to the proprietary protocol used by the online accounting system. (Think of it as a translator between the EGM and the Online Accounting System)

Instructor Notes:

SAS VS. G2S -

Processing of data occurs in milliseconds to ensure the games operate as designed. For every push of the play button on the gaming machine the SMIB is processing data to assist with integrity and fairness of gaming while communicating with the backend systems.

SMIB board is the device that will alter the protocol used from SAS to the proprietary Protocol of the system

- All current games will talk a SAS Protocol and the SMIB board will collect the information and send it back to the CMS via the Proprietary protocol of the system
- Every system calls the SMIB board something else, i.e IGT calls it a BE2 (Bonus Engine), Konami calls it a NAMB board, Aristocrat calls it a Sentinel Board

KEY POINTS

Kiosks can serve as a companion to the online accounting systems by allowing patrons to be able to cash out their vouchers and/or gaming tickets. The information is then transferred to the accounting system for processing.

KEY POINTS

- MICS is the Minimum Internal Control Standards
- TICS is the Tribal Internal Control Standards
- SICS is the System Internal Control Standards

KEY POINTS

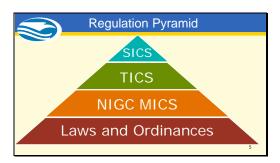

• The MICS are the minimum standards and a TGRA may establish and implement additional controls that do not conflict with those set out in this part.

KEY POINTS

The creation of 543 MICS was intended to allow tribes the autonomy and flexibility to create standards that best meets their needs. (One size doesn't fit all)

KEY POINTS

- Laws and ordinance include state, tribal, and federal laws including the Tribal Ordinance.
- MICS Minimum Internal Controls Standards
- TICS Tribal Internal Control Standards
- SICS System of Internal Controls Standards

KEY POINTS

Internal controls provide reasonable assurances for asset protection, risk mitigation and reduction in opportunities.

FOCUS on the WHY - We have internal controls for FRAUD prevention and HOW to control fraud is by developing strong SICS and TICS.

KEY POINTS

What do they do?

- Provide reasonable assurance.
- Helps mitigate risk.
- Helps management achieve organizational goals.

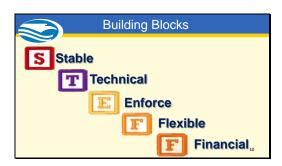

KEY POINTS ADD picture into slide KF

- Preventive controls are built into, not onto, the system.
- Detective controls are deferred to the end of the process.
- Directive Control examples: policy statements, performance guidelines, training programs, and incentive compensation plans.
- Mitigating controls which are designed to compensate for missing or excessively costly controls.

Risks and Controls

- Processes or areas that if not controlled could result in loss or abuse.
- Risk tolerance.
- Accepting risk operations vs. regulatory

Operations can't "accept the risk" if there is not a NIGC "MINIMUM", compact or Tribal ordinance provision.

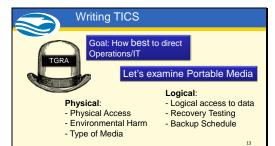

KEY POINTS

Risk is the probability that an actual return on investment will be lowered or an exposure to danger.

Remember the fraud triangle. We understand that we can only control "opportunity." We achieve this by adding internal controls over our processes; which results in strong system of internal control and everyone must work together to ensure these controls are understood and followed. To achieve this, TGRA must expand on NIGC MICS to meet the needs of their property and Management must develop a strong SICS, as approved by the TGRA. So that TGRC works together with the operations to achieve compliance.

• Controls must be established(TICS) and procedures implemented(SICS) Are controls established and procedures implemented to ensure adequate:

Control of physical and logical access to the information technology environment, including accounting, voucher, cashless and player tracking systems, among others used in conjunction with Class II gaming 543.20(c)(1)

KFY POINTS

When writing TICS remember that the TICS are directives not procedures for IT/Operations to follow.

543.20(c)2 - Are controls established and procedures implemented to ensure adequate:

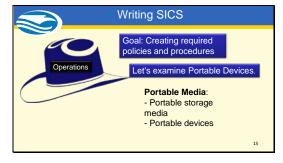

Physical and logical protection of storage media and its contents, including recovery procedures?

Example TIC:

The IT Department will manage security controls surrounding storage media (such as thumb/flash/USB drives and CD's) and portable devices (such as laptops, tablets and smart phones) with regard to sensitive Casino information.

Key Notes:

KEY POINTS

When writing SICS remember that SICS are more focused on the procedures needed to fulfil the requirements of the TICS.

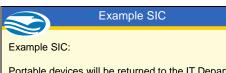

MIC:

543.20(c)2 - Are controls established and procedures implemented to ensure adequate:

TIC:

Portable devices will be returned to the IT Department when a team member is terminated, resigns, or changes to a position that does not require the device. If damage to the device is noted, the IT Team Member will inform IT Management to review the portable device and Management will notify payroll if necessary

Key Points: Example SIC:

Version 1.0

NIGC Compliance Division

NIGC Information Technology Audit-25 CFR 543.20 Toolkit

Over twenty five years ago Congress adopted the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act (IGRA) to provide a statutory regulate gaming activities conducted by sovereign Indian tribes on Indian lands. The mission of the NIGC is basis for gaming by Indian tribes. The National Indian Gaming Commission (NIGC) was created by IGRA to to fully realize IGRA's goals of: (1) promoting tribal economic development, self-sufficiency and strong tribal governments; (2) maintaining the integrity of the Indian gaming industry; and (3) ensuring that tribes are the primary beneficiaries of their gaming activities. One of the primary ways the NIGC does this is by providing training and technical assistance to Indian tribes and their gaming regulators.

Auditing staff. This reference guide is intended to assist IT Auditor(s), Gaming Commissioner(s) and Operations personnel in the performance of measuring compliance of their operation(s) with 25 CFR 543.20. The toolkit is designed to provide each standard as it relates to 543.20, the language of the standard, the intent of the The National Indian Gaming Commission (NIGC) is pleased to present this Toolkit to all Compliance and standard, and then a recommended testing step which will ensure minimum regulatory compliance.

operations Tribal Internal Controls Standards (TICS) and or System of Internal Controls Standards (SICS), which may require further testing. The NIGC encourages Operations to develop standards that exceed the Minimum This Toolkit is designed to meet the minimum requirements of the NIGC MICS and does not take into account Internal Control Standards, because each operation is unique, therefore a robust set of controls is warranted.

If you have questions or comments about this guide, please contact the NIGC Compliance Division at training@nigc.gov. For more information, visit the NIGC website at http://www.nigc.gov.

"Repair and replacement of individual components of Class II gaming systems have been and continue to be permitted."

KEY POINTS

Modifications:

"Modification of components of 2008 Systems also continue to be permitted provided the TGRA determines that the modification either maintains compliance with the requirements for 2008 Systems or increases compliance with the requirements for newer systems."

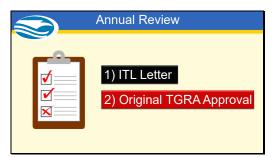

KEY POINTS

Requirements:

"The annual review requirement will ensure that 2008 Systems are adequately monitored and that 2008 Systems that meet the standards applicable to newer systems are identified by the TGRA and gaming operation. Bulletin No. 2018-2

Subject: 2008 Systems Annual Review; 25 C.F.R. § 547.5(a)(2)(iii)

On December 27, 2017, the Commission published changes to the Minimum Technical Standards for Class II Gaming Systems and Equipment regulations (25 C.F.R. Part 547) in the Federal Register (82 FR 61172). The new regulations became effective on January 26, 2018. This Bulletin provides guidance on the newly added requirement for annual review of Class II gaming systems manufactured before November 10, 2008 (2008 Systems).

Prior to the Commission's recent change, all 2008 Systems were required to be removed from the gaming floor by November of 2018 unless the system was approved as compliant with the standards for newer systems. The Commission determined that the continued operation of 2008 Systems is in the best interest of Indian gaming provided that such systems are subject to additional annual review by TGRAs. With the new change, the 2008 Systems can remain on the floor but each year the TGRA must review the testing laboratory reports associated with the 2008 System to determine whether it can be approved pursuant to the standards for newer systems. As part of the review, the TGRA must identify all 2008 Systems operating on the floor as well as any 2008 systems that were subsequently approved by the TGRA as compliant with the standards for new systems. Additionally, for the 2008 Systems that would not be approved as compliant with the standards for newer systems, the TGRA must identify the components of the system preventing such approval.

This annual review requirement is intended to ensure that 2008 Systems are adequately monitored and to identify any systems that technically meet the standards for newer systems but have not been approved pursuant to those standards. To complete the review, the TGRA must review the testing laboratory reports associated with the 2008 System that are maintained by the TGRA. If the TGRA determines that the testing laboratory reports for the 2008 System and its current components demonstrate that the 2008 System meets the standards for newer systems, the TGRA may make a finding that the system conforms to the standards for newer systems and include a finding in the annual review that the system was so approved. That system will then no longer be subject to the 2008 Systems provisions, including subsequent 2008 System annual reviews.

If the TGRA determines that the testing laboratory reports for the 2008 System and its current components do not demonstrate that the 2008 System meets the standards for newer systems and therefore cannot be approved pursuant to those standards, the TGRA must make a finding identifying which components prevent such approval. Such components will likely fall within one of three categories: 1) components for which the associated testing laboratory report includes a finding that the component does not meet the standards for newer systems, 2) components for which the associated testing laboratory report did not include a finding regarding whether the component met the standards for newer systems, and 3) components for which the TGRA has not maintained a testing laboratory report.

Please note that pursuant to 547.5(c)(3) TGRAs must maintain testing laboratory reports for all component modifications made after January 26, 2018, the effective date of the new regulations. Prior to this date, certain hardware component modifications for 2008 Systems did not require testing laboratory reports. A TGRA may determine at its discretion whether to request testing laboratory reports from the gaming operation, vendor, or manufacturer for hardware component modifications for which reports had not previously been required.

Finally, it is important to note that the annual review only requires review of existing laboratory reports which the TGRA has maintained for systems and components in use on the gaming floor. TGRAs are not required to submit systems or components for new testing in order to complete the annual review.

If you have any questions please contact a NIGC region office or the NIGC Director of Compliance.

Objectives
Define Incident Response and Incident Reporting within the scope of the MICS and Service Management strategies
Identify why we need Incident Reporting Review basic Incident Response and Reporting techniques
 Explore incident response reporting through scenario driven examples.

KEY POINTS

- Define
- Identify
- Review

KEY POINTS

- •IT accounts for 15% of all the MICS findings in the AUP.
- •543.20(i) Incident reporting accounted for 10% of the total IT findings in 2017

KEY POINTS

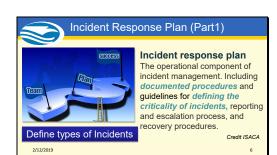

(i) Incident monitoring and reporting.

- Procedures must be implemented (SICS need to be developed) for responding to, monitoring, investigating, resolving, documenting, and reporting security incidents associated with information technology systems.
- 2) All security incidents must be responded to within an established time period approved by the TGRA and formally documented.

KEY POINTS

- ISACA's definition of Incident.
- Resources for official strategies:
 - NIST Special Publication 800-61-r2
 - NIST Special Publication 800-184
 - ISACA Incident Management and Response
 - ITIL Service Operation
 - ITIL IM
 - ISO 20000-1

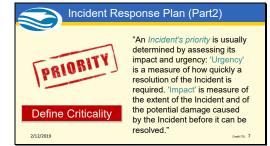

KEY POINTS

- ISACA's definition of Incident response plan
- An incident Response Plan is the operational component of incident management.
- The plan includes documented procedures and guidelines for defining the criticality of incidents, reporting and escalation process, and recovery procedures.

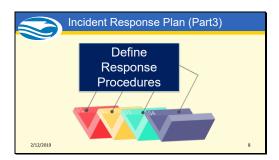

Possible IT Incident categories:

- Multiple Player Card failures
- Public facing website down
- · IDF switch outage
- Floor switch outage
- · Outage in virtual server environment
- Power outage that results in system failure
- Hardware cooling outage
- Portion of any gaming floor outage
- POS outage
- Kiosk / ATM outage
- Check / Cash Advance outage
- · Phone outages
- Radio outage
- Surveillance infrastructure outage
- · Any additional item at discretion of IT/GC/Operations management

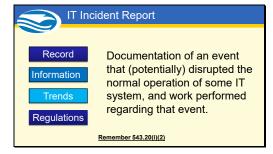

KEY POINTS

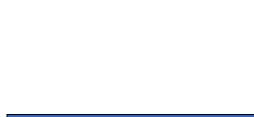

- To cover incidents with the correct resources we need to define how critical the incident is.
- The ITIL's (Information Technology Infrastructure Library) definition of Incident's Priority.

KEY POINTS

- Another important step in the Incident Response process is defining the appropriate procedures for each type of incident.
- _____

- For the purposes of this course an Incident Report can be defined as documentation of an event that disrupted (or had the potential to disrupt) the normal operation of some IT system, and work performed regarding that event.
- Incident Reporting is required by the MICS and that process of responding to, monitoring, investigating, resolving, and documenting, is just one important part of a robust ITSM (IT Service Management) plan. Other aspects of a service management plan include but are not limited to:
 - A list of relevant contacts in the case of an incident
 - Listed in the order to contact
 - Don't include too many people
 - Have a moderator for conference calls
 - Documented process for initial response and support
 - Record of resolution
 - Ownership, monitoring, tracking
 - Incident closure

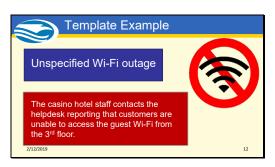

- Features to consider when choosing incident management software
 - A central repository to log and track issues.
 - Automatic generation of incidents from email, chat, SMS, and more
 - Automatic ticket routing, categorization, incident closure, and more.
 - Automatic incident prioritization based on impact and urgency.
 - Email and SMS communication from within the application.
 - Both customizable and predefined forms and templates.
 - A priority matrix that helps define the priority of tickets based on their impact and urgency.
 - The option to create multiple tasks for each incident.
 - Configurable rules to automatically drive tasks and route incidents.
 - Well-established response and resolution SLA management.
 - The option to pause the SLA timer for a specific period of time.
 - Ability to link incidents to other modules including problems and changes.
 - The option to associate incidents with related problems or convert an incident to a problem or a change.
 - A self-service portal where users can log their tickets.
 - Live chat included within the help desk.
 - A calendar showing technician availability.
 - A complete history of incidents and workstations.
 - Customizable roles and incident templates.
 - Task management for IT incidents.
 - Ability to create multiple sites.
 - A customizable knowledge base that allows end users to search for possible resolutions.

- · Notifications for users and technicians.
- Automated user satisfaction surveys that collect feedback from end users.
- Support for integration with other IT management tools and applications.

• Refer to Participant Guide for the Handout - IT Incident Report Template. NOTE: This template is an example document and not an official NIGC document.
